INTRODUCTION (Cambria, 12pt Bold)

Introduction consists of (in sequence) general background, state of the art as the basis for the scientific novelty statement of the article, scientific novelty statement, and research problem or hypothesis. In the end, the introduction should mention the purpose of article review. Literature review is not allowed in the scientific article format, so it is replaced by the state of the art to prove the novelty of the article. (Cambria, 12 pt; Space 1.15).

METHODS (12pt Bold)

Research Methods are implemented to solve problems, including analytical methods. The method used to solve the research problems is described in this section. (Cambria, 12 pt; Space 1.15)

RESULT AND DISCUSSION (12pt Bold)

This section consists of results and discussion. Every finding should be supported by sufficient data. Then, research findings should be able to answer the research question or hypothesis stated earlier in the introduction. When using Illustration, the current is effective and interconnected, not rewriting the whole data, or just asking the writer to read the table. For example: The most relevant socio- demographic variables of the sample are shown in Table 4. In terms of gender, men and women are nearly similar in number. Most of the tourists in this area are less than 50 years old and they come primarily from rural areas. Surprisingly, approximately 65% of the visitors are having primary education. (Cambria, 12 pt; Space 1.15)

CONCLUSION (12pt Bold)

Conclusion states the answer of the hypothesis and/or research objective or scientific finding. Conclusion is not the repetition of findings and discussion, but it is the summary of findings as expected in the objective or hypothesis. If necessary, conclusion can also be ended with the next idea to be implemented to the study. (Cambria, 12 pt; Space 1.15)
