

Newberry Renaissance Consortium Grants

Faculty, students, librarians, and staff from Center for Renaissance Studies consortium institutions may be eligible to apply for travel funding to participate in Center for Renaissance Studies programs or to conduct research at the Newberry Library. Recipients of these funds may include the award on their curriculum vitae as a “Newberry Renaissance Consortium Grant.”

Funding may also be available to attend programs sponsored by or to do research at the Folger Shakespeare Library. These awards may be listed on CVs as a “Newberry Renaissance Consortium Grant for seminar participation/research at the Folger Institute.” Please see our Folger Agreement for more details.

Each member institution sets its own policies, requirements, and deadlines for granting funds; some may limit eligibility to specific departments, colleges, or other units within the university. Contact your consortium faculty representative in advance of incurring any expenses for details and authorization.

To request a stipend please follow directions here under “submit a stipend request”:
