

T-TH Reflection on Outlining and Paragraphing (9/27/11)

Paste your brief reflection of what you have learned about outlining and paragraphing that answers the questions below. Sign it with your first name or a pseudonym/nickname.

- What did you learn from thinking and discussing Outlining and Paragraphing?
- What did you learn from writing a paragraph with your group?
- How could paragraphing make you a better writer?

*-Chan

- What did you learn from thinking and discussing Outlining and Paragraphing?
 - I learned that I have to make the paragraph juicer.
- What did you learn from writing a paragraph with your group?
 - we can divide the work.
- How could paragraphing make you a better writer?
 - It help me organize my essay.

Frankie

- I learned how to elaborate on reasons how to explain and give the reader and an image or understand on what i am trying to write.

- I learned that it is much easier to be in a group, a group can figure out a lot of more reasons why something is correct, but i also learned how to brainstorm and think outside the box

-paragraphing can make you into a better writer by giving the reader a better understanding on what i am trying to write, almost persuading the reader that you are right.

Shevell Partridge

I learned that I need to add more details to my writing. What I really need help with is writing a conclusion

Alnequa owens

-i learned that when you writing a outlining and paragraphing and it have to start with a topic .and have to be the significant idea.and after the paragraph it have to be jucy .like the it have to have important ideas to support your idea.It have to be facts.

Christian

_ I learn that with this you can make longer and better essays

_ a group can give more reason and examples that one person

_help your organization and you don't get lost when you write

RAID HUSSEIN

I learned how to write a longer essay with more details to support it ,and as i worked in a group i got to know how to combine more details, it was a bit easier to work in a group this time because we needed alot of examples this helped me by how every essay is supposed to be organized and how much info to throw in.

Today I paragraphed an answer based on what Nicholas Carr wrote on “ Is Google Making Us Stupid”. My group disagreed with the fact that the internet is faster and is no distraction. I learned about the reasons and the details behind it and the difference between claim and thesis. - Cesar

Reflection- Kenia (Kookie)

- A good essay is when we use a summary of a thesis, for the body we need the 3 or more reasons if we have more reasons that containing’s examples or facts the better, a conclusion that explain what we were talking about.
- What I learned with my group was to combine our ideas together to make it look better and longer.
- It makes me a better writer by putting in practice what we just learn in class about organizing an essay.

FREAKY**

Chris Oquendo

Over the years I have learned different things from different classrooms, for example quoting the title of the book mentioning the writer all in one paragraph. From working with a group I have learned how other people felt and their opinions in certain subjects. As far as paragraphing I’ve always knew how to write decent paragraph for example writing a nice body paragraph restating my thesis or stating facts or examples for my main reason.

Alysia

-I learn it a lot easier to be in a group because you could find out a lot more reasons and learn from other

-I learn how to put understand what I am writing on and not rushing and explain the reader

- I learn how to put more detail when I’m writing and starting to improve on my conclusion

Reflection

Jonathan Sanchez

- What did you learn from thinking and discussing Outlining and Paragraphing?

I learned how to structure it with these steps, 1. Claim 2. Main reason 3.Examples

- What did you learn from writing a paragraph with your group?

I learned their point of view on the examples. They think differently than me so it's always good to know another point of view.

- How could paragraphing make you a better writer?

It would help me see a model of my writing beforehand so I can know what my essay will be about. It's a more organized way to write instead of free writing where there you could have a lot of mistakes.

Reflection

Norelia Sanchez

I learned a few things about outlines and paragraphing like that it better to have the main idea at the beginning of the paragraph so that the reader could understand what you're writing. We being in group weren't bad I'm learning how to work better the paragraph wasn't hard but I just don't like writing. Writing a paragraph makes us better writers cause it keep us organized.

Daniel Morales

Reflection

- In class I learn the body paragraph we have to choose a reason and give detail about it.
- From writing the paragraph in group I learned that giving four reason is the best it gives the paragraph to be long and detail enough.
- A paragraph can make you better by describing the reason and give a very good detail.

.....

Mohammad

Today I learned how to write a body paragraph with group. When we work in a group we can get more information and more examples that we can add on our paragraph.

.....

Tracy

Paragraphing is to develop your ideas and support your claim in a paragraph. In your paragraph it should consist of a thesis which has a topic sentence, a claim, and your reasons and an explanation for these reasons. I understand the concept and I believe I'm getting better at it.