Below is a very short list of resources. We hesitate to offer resources that we have not vetted ourselves, and some resources change over time. Please consider using this tool, created by educators who currently work with WAESN, to help you assess resources.

Books

Culturally Sustaining Pedagogies: Teaching and learning for justice in a changing world - edited by Django Paris and H. Samy Alim

A Pedagogy for Liberation - Paulo Freire and Ira Shor

Pedagogy of the Oppressed - Paulo Freire

Transformative Ethnic Studies in Schools: Curriculum, pedagogy, and research - Christine Sleeter and Miguel Zavala

Curriculum

WAESN Curriculum

Magazines

Rethinking Schools

Museums

Many museums offer free curriculum and professional development.

Filipino American National History Society

Northwest African American Museum

Sea Mar Museum of Chicano/a/Latin/a Culture

Unspoken Truths Traveling History Museum

Wing Luke Museum

News Sources

Converge Media

South Seattle Emerald

WAESN Blog

Professional Development

Acosta Educational Partnership - Dr. Curtis Acosta's organization, focusing on ethnic studies and culturally responsive teaching

Xicanx Institute for Teaching and Learning - This group, based in Tucson, Arizona, composed largely of educators from the Tucson High School Raza Studies Program, offers several, 3-day institutes, including one in Washington every February. This organization is responsible for much of the learning on the Nahui Ollin.

Websites

Africatown - Specific to Seattle

Black Lives Matter at School - includes a collection of lesson plans and resources from educators across the country

Black Star Rising - Dr. LaTasha Levy's work

Densho - Japanese Internment - Densho also offers professional development.

Native Knowledge 360 - from the Smithsonian Institute; created by American Indians

Since Time Immemorial - legally mandated tribal history created by American Indians in the PNW

Teaching Central America - a collection of various resources curated by Teaching for Change

The Civil Rights and Labor History Consortium - This resource created by the University of Washington has many resources specific to Seattle and Washington State.

WAESN's YouTube Channel

WAESN's Podcast