Session Title:
Session Objectives:	1. Students will understand that families can come in different shapes and sizes. 2. Students will recognize and appreciate the diversity of families. 3. Students will learn about different family structures and dynamics.
Key Concepts:	Definition of a family Various types of families (nuclear, extended, single-parent, stepfamily, etc.) Discussion on the importance of love, care, and support within families
III. Facilitation Strategies
Time Allotment	Description	Suggested Activities
15 minutes	Introduction	Begin with a short discussion on what students think a family is. Introduce the concept of different types of families using simple language and visuals. Share a brief story or video clip depicting a diverse family.
20 minutes	Class Discussion	Engage the students in a discussion about different family structures. Use visual aids like pictures or drawings to represent each type of family. Encourage students to share their own experiences or observations.
15 minutes	Group Activity – Family Drawing	Divide the class into small groups. Provide each group with paper and art supplies. Ask them to draw a picture of a family, emphasizing the diversity of family members and structures.
10 mins	Storytime	Read a children's book that features a diverse family or explores different family types. Discuss the story with the students, emphasizing the uniqueness and importance of each family.

	Assessment	Observe and assess students' participation in class discussions. Evaluate the group drawings based on the representation of different family structures. Ask open-ended questions to gauge understanding during the storytime.
	Enrichment	Provide additional resources like books or videos about different family types for students who show a keen interest. Invite family members from diverse backgrounds to share their experiences with the class.
	Reflection with Student-Centered Activities:	Have students reflect on what they learned about different types of families. Ask them to write or draw about their own family, highlighting its uniqueness. Encourage students to share their reflections with the class in a show-and-tell style. Assign a family-related project where students create a family tree, showcasing different family members and their relationships.

This lesson plan aims to foster a sense of inclusivity and understanding among students by exploring the diversity of family structures.
