Devolution and Democracy.

An independent manifesto.

By-plate-equals-wide-cup

Devolution

- Increased devolution to the countries and territories of the United Kingdom. Including regional councils such as the proposed “council of the north” and “council of the south”.
- The creation of an English parliament.
- every news outlet and person will have the right to express any opinion.

Democracy

- Greater powers to be given to already existing UK parliaments and future regional councils.
- The abolishment of reformation of the House of Lords.

- The abolishment of the first past the post system.
- Create the ability for constituents to request the removal of an mp but not the party in which the party belongs.

Culture.

- The introduction of a new Union Jack that includes saint dauids cross over or under the cross of Saint George. This is to represent Wales in the national flag.
- The encouragement of national and regional languages to be taught at the appropriate areas and also offer the option of regional languages in A-levels.
- The introduction of national service requiring people 16 years up to participate in national service this does include military service and over public services. This is to promote useful skills in youth and to promote nationalism.

The regional party alliance.

- Create a political party that holds all of the policies in this current and future manifestos.
- The promotion of a centre/centre left,unionist party in Northern Ireland to create an alternative to the current more extreme parties.
- The parties intent will not be to have majority control over government rather to have a strong voice of leftist nationalism in the House of Commons. The promotion of a strong opposition to right wing false populism.
- The promotion of real populism bringing mp's salary down and the common man's salary up.
- Focus our attention on the various liberal parties in order to "drain the swamp" and put an end to a conservative coalition government that brings unstable leadership.

Economics

- The abolishment of austerity that destroys communities, decreasing lifespans and increasing anti social behaviour , putting the country at risk.
- The nationalisation of the train networks.
- The nationalisation of the Royal Post service.
- A relatively regulated market.
- An increase in public spending in a system in which the public chooses what service should have the most money put to it.
- Give every citizen the right to free healthcare but the right to have private healthcare.

- The closing of private education until it is more affordable.
- The lowering of tuition fees and the abolishment of tuition fees for students who intend to do public service such as working for the NHS.
- Increase military and intelligence budgets.

The environment

- the expansion of national parks
- The increase in the amount of trees that are planted.
- A slight reduction in the logging in Scotland.
- The reintroduction of wild animals such as Linx into rural areas such as the Scottish highlands. The same goes for wolves. This is to increase tourism in local areas and to control vermin and deer populations.
- An increase in government investment into struggling sea side tourist towns which have been on a steady decline.
- The increase in renewable energy and put a stop to the labour parties plan to open coal mines

Brexit

- Encourage a second referendum
- Create a strong deal with the eu that do not not compromise British jobs or the Irish border.
- If the UK remains, persist on a more democratic eu.
- Give eu member states the choice to accept the jurisdiction of the European court.

Foreign policy

- The condemnation of terrorist states such North Korea,Saudi Arabia, Hamas controlled gaza any others.
- Increase participation and increase spending into NATO and encourage members to do the same.

Security
