About

We are a group of Squamish residents connected over a common interest in machine learning, data science and AI.

We aim to grow skills and knowledge, and make connections through a series of talks, group coding events, pair programming and hackathons.

To get involved, come along on Wednesday evenings to meet the group!

We host our meets at The Common - a community workspace on Cleveland. Check out their website and definitely consider them if you're a remote worker.

Goals

1. To make a network for Machine Learning engineers, AI researchers, Data Scientists to share knowledge and grow their skill sets together.
2. To connect with local businesses about issues they're facing, and to connect the above groups with these businesses and discuss potential work contracts.
3. To provide a space for businesses to pitch problems they're facing, and find out whether the skills to fix their issues lie within the skillset of people here in town.
4. To host presentations and discussions around machine learning and related fields.
5. Connect with the community by networking and providing meets which serve the community and grow knowledge.
6. Attract interest from local businesses by sharing about the existence of the group and advertising.
7. For people to enjoy a fun evening with like-minded people.
