STORY OF ARON RALSTON

On April 25 2003 Aron Ralston prepares for a day of canyoneering in Utah's Canyonland's National Park. The next day he rides on his bike through the park aiming to cut off 45 minutes off the guide book's estimate for the time needed to get to his destination.

He dumped his bike to run on foot when he runs into two hikers kristi and megan apparently lost. He soon convinces them that he is a trail guide and knows a different route.

He leads them through lots of obstacles until they leave and invite him to a party that they are having the next night. When he is by himself he dislodges a huge boulder that traps his arm against the canyon wall. At first he starts yelling for help but no one can hear him. He then starts rationing food and water and he tries to chip away at the rock but he realizes that his chances of being freed are miniscule so he then starts to cut away at his arm but he finds the knife is too blunt to break his skin so he starts to stab his arm but realizes he won't be able to cut through the bone
