Dear [Business Owner/Manager's Name],

I hope this letter finds you well. My name is [Your Name], and I am a long-time resident of [Your Town]. I'm writing to express my concern about a trend happening in small towns like ours, where Pride events are being introduced and often marketed as "family friendly."

These events frequently involve inappropriate performances, harmful ideologies, and even the exposure of children to sexually explicit content. Businesses that sponsor these events often face backlash from the community once the true nature of the activities becomes clear. Many business owners who supported similar events in other towns later expressed regret, not fully understanding what their funds were supporting.

I respectfully encourage you to carefully consider any requests to sponsor or support such events in [Your Town]. Your business plays an important role in shaping the values of our community, and standing for wholesome, family-friendly initiatives sends a powerful and positive message.

We are grateful for what you bring to our town and are praying for local businesses like yours. If you'd like to discuss this further, feel free to contact me at [Your Phone Number] or [Your Email Address].

Thank you for your time and for your contributions to making [Your Town] a great place to live and work.

Sincerely,

Letter to a Police Chief or Sheriff

Dear [Police Chief/Sheriff's Name],

Thank you for your service and leadership in protecting the people of [Your Town]. I am writing to respectfully share my concerns regarding law enforcement's role in public events, particularly Pride parades or similar gatherings that may occur in our community.

Romans 13:3-4 reminds us that civil authorities are God's servants, called to reward good and restrain evil: "For rulers are not a cause of fear for good behavior, but for evil. Do you want to have no fear of authority? Do what is good and you will have praise from the same; for it is a servant of God to you for good. But if you do what is evil, be afraid; for it does not bear the sword for nothing." This verse speaks to the high calling of your position—not only to enforce laws but to promote what is good for the community and to discourage what harms it.

Events like Pride parades often promote behaviors and ideologies that many in our community believe are harmful, particularly to children and families. While there may be pressure to provide resources such as permits, police protection, or road closures, I respectfully urge you to consider whether supporting such events aligns with the moral duty of your office. When law enforcement supports activities that undermine the moral integrity of the town, it can create division and erode trust in leadership.

Your leadership matters greatly, and decisions like these set a tone for the kind of community we want to cultivate—a community that values and protects what is good, wholesome, and beneficial for all. Thank you for your service to [Your Town]. Please know that I am praying for you as you carry out the responsibilities of your position.

Sincerely,

Letter to a Mayor

Dear Mayor [Mayor's Name],

Thank you for your service to the people of [Your Town]. As a resident who values our community, I am writing to share my concerns about the potential for Pride events or similar public gatherings in our town and to encourage you to consider your role in addressing such matters.

Romans 13:3-4 reminds us of the responsibility given to governing authorities: “For rulers are not a cause of fear for good behavior, but for evil. Do you want to have no fear of authority? Do what is good and you will have praise from the same; for it is a servant of God to you for good. But if you do what is evil, be afraid; for it does not bear the sword for nothing.” This passage highlights the God-given role of civil leaders to promote good and restrain evil, ensuring that public policies reflect what is beneficial for the community.

Pride events often promote behaviors and ideologies that undermine family values and the moral foundation of our community. These events, frequently marketed as “inclusive” or “family-friendly,” often involve inappropriate content that is harmful to children and divisive to the community. By allocating public resources—such as permits, road closures, and police protection—to support such events, the government appears to condone activities that many of your constituents find morally troubling.

As the mayor, you can lead with courage by ensuring that public resources and spaces are used for activities that align with what is truly good for our community. I encourage you to take a stand for what promotes flourishing and unity among the people of [Your Town].

Thank you for considering this important matter. I am praying for you as you make decisions that impact the future of our community. If you would like to discuss this further, I would be happy to meet with you.

Sincerely,

Dear Pastor [Pastor's Name],

I hope this letter finds you well. As a fellow believer, I am writing out of concern for the growing cultural pressure on small towns like [Your Town] to host Pride events. These events often normalize sin, promote harmful ideologies, and include inappropriate content that can harm children and families.

Scripture calls us to take a stand in such moments. Ephesians 5:11 says, "Do not participate in the unfruitful deeds of darkness, but instead even expose them." As the spiritual leaders of this community, I believe pastors like you are uniquely called to speak truth in love and protect the moral integrity of our town.

Would you consider how your church might respond? Educating your congregation, praying for the town, or partnering with others to address these events can have a significant impact. Silence may be seen as approval, but boldness rooted in love can glorify God and point people to the hope of Christ.

Please know I am praying for you and your ministry at [Church Name]. If you'd like to discuss this further, I'd be happy to meet. You can reach me at [Your Phone Number] or [Your Email Address].

Thank you for your faithfulness to God and His Word. May He strengthen you as you lead His church.

In Christ,

Dear [Library Director/Board Members],

I hope this letter finds you well. As a resident of [Your Town], I am grateful for the work you do to provide resources and programs that benefit our community. I am writing to share my concerns and hopes regarding future decisions about the books and materials included in our library's collection, particularly those aimed at children.

Libraries are places of learning and enrichment, but the inclusion of books promoting LGBTQ ideologies, especially those targeting young readers, has caused concern for many families in our community. Ephesians 5:11 says, "Do not participate in the unfruitful deeds of darkness, but instead even expose them." As stewards of this institution, I ask that you consider how future decisions regarding book selections can reflect the values of the families who support the library and protect the moral and intellectual development of children.

I encourage the board to prioritize materials that inspire, educate, and build up our community. This could include adopting transparent policies for book selection and avoiding content that promotes confusion or harmful ideologies. Families depend on the library to be a safe and trustworthy resource, and I believe you have an opportunity to affirm that trust through thoughtful decision-making.

Thank you for your time and for considering the concerns of those you serve. If you would like to discuss this further, I would be happy to meet or provide additional feedback. You can reach me at [Your Phone Number] or [Your Email Address].

Sincerely,
