How Shopping Works

Shopping at the cannabis dispensary begins with a visit to the licensed retail location. Customers must present valid government-issued photo identification showing that they are at least 19 years old before completing a purchase.

THE WOODS

After age verification, customers can browse the available cannabis products and ask knowledgeable staff for general information about product categories, THC and CBD content, formats, and labelled usage instructions. First-time visitors can expect a straightforward retail experience focused on legal compliance and informed product selection.

After choosing their products, customers can complete the purchase using accepted in-store payment methods. Depending on the payment options available at the location, customers may be able to use debit, credit card, or another approved payment method.

Pricing and Payment

Cannabis pricing varies according to several factors. Product category affects the price because flower, edibles, vapes, beverages, pre-rolls, and concentrates are sold in different formats and quantities. Brand selection can also influence cost, with premium brands and specialty products sometimes priced higher than standard alternatives.

THC and CBD content may affect pricing, while larger package sizes generally cost more than smaller quantities. Product format also matters, as dried flower, concentrates, edible products, beverages, and vape products have different production and packaging requirements. Store promotions may reduce the total purchase cost of selected products when available.

Legal and Compliance

Recreational cannabis is legal in Ontario when purchased by eligible adults through an authorized retailer. A retail store licence and the appropriate cannabis licence are required for businesses legally selling recreational cannabis in the province.

The Woods Cannabis follows applicable Ontario cannabis regulations, including age-verification requirements and rules governing the sale of regulated products. Cannabis products are sourced through Ontario's regulated distribution system, helping ensure that labelled products meet provincial standards.

Retail security measures may also be used to support regulatory compliance, customer safety, and loss prevention. Any security service used by a licensed retailer should operate according to applicable privacy, security, and provincial requirements.
