Synopsis:

In a particular City, the denizens of the night gather. The Nightmares, otherworldly creatures that don't bend to the same logic as you or I, live together in that place. Paradise for freaks and absurdity. However within Nightmare City there exists entities that scare even the Nightmares.

Dreamers, ones with power over the very existence of reality for this city, sit as malevolent Gods on their throne above all else.

Once upon a time, Nightmares would enter into the dreams of humans and feed upon the powerful emotions triggered by the bad dreams they brought. This practice has since been outlawed by the Dreamers.

This however doesn't stop a particular Nightmare, who continues to strive for greater power in order to destroy the Dreamers.

During a particular venture into a dream, the human being fed on ends up dragged back into Nightmare City. With the Nightmare responsible recognizing that this human is a potential Dreamer.

With a once in a life-time opportunity, the Nightmare forces the human into working with them to take on the Dreamers. With the goal for the two becoming a team of a Dreamer and their Night-Knight.
