subject line: How to become rich?

Do you wake up in a big mansion and when you open the mirror you see an amazing view of Dubai?

Are you the type of man who is 6'2" tall, strong, and muscular when you drive your Lambo other men look at you and they are so jealous.

Every beautiful girl who looks at you wants to sit next to you and call you my man.

Probably not.

Or Weak, unhappy, skinny, you wake up at 6 a.m. and go to work,

living from paycheck to paycheck.

You worry about the rent.

Invisible to any woman because you are too broke,
unattractive and shy.

Can you even say to yourself?

I am living my dream life.

I have my dream body and lots of money like I wanted.

If you have enough of this lifestyle where you feel tired from work and being poor, you are ready to do what it takes to become rich, powerful, and strong.

HSO FRAMEWORK

subject line: I went back home and just started crying...

earth-shattering moments can go either one of two ways

I worked very hard in my office to pay the rent and to pay for my mother's treatment.
I went to my boss's office full of energy and hope.

BUT

I came back almost crying.

My boss told me that the company is going bankrupt and they have to lay off all the employees.
They can't even pay me.

I took all my things and just went home.

When the door closed, I just started crying.

I couldn't pay the rent,

I couldn't pay for my mother's treatment.

I failed as a man and as a son.

In one moment, my world was ruined.

All my hard work at the office was for nothing.

GONE.

But I get up and I have to do something.

In one moment I had two options

I could either give up and say goodbye to my mother and my dreams

OR

I could find the strength to rise and find a way out of this hell.

Post Traumatic Stress or Post Traumatic Growth,

The choice was mine.

Fortunately, I discovered a set of mental models that not only gave me the key to making 200x more money than I was making at the office and being the best version of myself in every way.

but I finished my mother's treatment and she lives happily in this world.

And I have my friend Andrew Tate to thank for that.
