

Task 5: MOTAT visit

For this task I made my decision to research Museum of transport and technology (Motat) which is open in 1964 and is the largest museum in New Zealand .

The second part is The new aviation display hall, which was established in 1984, housing a huge collections of planes, military and civil aircrafts. The most notable in the collection are the only flying boat in the world, the Lancaster bomber and the Mosquito. Motat 2 has one of the most impressive aircraft collections in the Southern Hemisphere, also it offers visitors a fun, visually stimulating and educational experience ,especially for school students.

I managed to get an interview with David Konnu,who is one of the staff members at Motat, I went there and met my interviewee. Before the interview I had a tour around the aviation display hall with David, I took some photos of the aircrafts inside the display hall only, because it was difficult to go to the other sites, due to the heavy rain outside.

Before I started my research I felt anxious, because my first idea for this task was to research about the greenstone but I was unable to find the right person. However during this research I felt auspicious and cheerful, as everything went according to plan and I organised the meeting easily.

During my interview with David, I felt relaxed and happy. I also understood everything he said. Moreover I was very pleased that David was very kind, generous and helpful, as he spent a long time to take me around the display hall, and he explained many things in details.

Overall I enjoyed the task, it was very useful as I learnt new vocabulary and gained information about the aviation collection in the museum. Now I feel more confident to express my ideas, and I am sure that next time I will do better.
