Opening More and Better Space Everywhere: Issues and Opportunities

For 30 years, old friends and new have been gathering annually to share Open Space practice stories, learnings and good cheer. The world-around history of the Open Space on Open Space is documented at openspaceworld.org/osonos.

This year, we're rained out in Berlin by COVID-19. The good news is that we are moving to QiqoChat.com, where we've already had great experiences meeting and working together (see VOSONOS 2015).

Please join us on [dates/times]! Click here for registration and details [link]. Be prepared to be surprised. And consider signing on as a co-convener. The requirements for that are simple: show up, bring friends and add spirit. Spread the word! Open the World!

Invitation Option #2

Here may be a single opportunity to share perspectives of a once per decade event, this pandemic. We have a chance to view the largest system possible (world) as it interacts with the smallest system (self, family or neighborhood). Have you seen a large variance in how the 2 have reacted?

The same? What can you say that shows this difference or similarity?

Can any lessons be applied elsewhere like to the ecological challenges? Space exploration or preventing the next war?

Join us in discussing this situation any way you wish, attempting to hold both perspectives (micro/macro) and implications that might accrue for world guidance and assistance. Or...not. Let's just talk about the pandemic...

Invitation Option #3

Walls, wars, anger, viruses, poverties, migrants, unemployment, climate change, inequalities, murders, terrorism, fear. Isn't that enough for all of us? While around us a lot of spaces close, shall we keep practicing open space? "Be the change you want to see" has any meaning in these difficult times?.

Join us to explore what us as humans can do for this world, and for the next generations. How can we have an impact in opening space in this incredible new world?

- I like this one. Maybe add a few words like 'young people are very welcome too'. (We need fresh eyes and I could bring in a group of students)
