

The Why & The Who

The Why:

Taking a field trip to study the Civil Rights Movement is vital for students because it allows them to experience history in a tangible way, deepening their understanding of the struggles and triumphs that shaped modern society. Visiting historical sites and museums where key events took place fosters a personal connection to the stories of those who fought for justice and equality. This immersive learning experience not only enriches their knowledge of civil rights history but also inspires students to reflect on the importance of social justice, empathy, and active citizenship in their own lives.

The Who:

This trip covers and complements the curriculum covered in African American Literature, AP African American Studies, AP U.S. History, U.S. History, AP Language and Composition, any students involved in BSU and any other students (juniors or seniors) who would like to attend.
