

Ichiro Goes to the Moon by Scott McCaughey

He'll have a seven course meal that Yumiko his wife prepares
Then for his stomach two ice cream bars and six chocolate eclaires
By day he builds a spaceship; it's got a periscope and hatch
At night he might go five for five, with a patented sliding catch s patented sliding catch

For those who haven't worshipped yet, must succumb to bowing soon
There'll be nothing left to prove, when Ichiro goes, Ichiro goes to the moon.
When Ichiro goes, Ichiro goes to the moon

At age 40 he'll turn to pitching with a fastball that hits 95
A knuckler that defies gravity, a curve with a 12-to-6 dive
Don't put him on a pedestal just treat him with respect
He seeks but his own approval, and earns all than he gets He earns all that he gets

There'll be another (???), a spaceship in the trophy room.
And I won't be surprised at all, when Ichiro goes, Ichiro goes to the moon
When Ichiro goes, Ichiro goes to the moon
When Ichiro goes, Ichiro goes to the moon