

FocusLedger Privacy Policy

Last updated: August 15, 2026

FocusLedger respects your privacy. This Privacy Policy explains how the FocusLedger Chrome extension handles user data.

Data Stored by FocusLedger

FocusLedger stores information needed to provide its timer and project-tracking features, including:

- Project names
- Focus session history
- Focus and break durations
- Calendar and statistics data
- Extension settings and preferences

This information is stored locally in your browser using Chrome's extension storage.

Data Collection and Transmission

FocusLedger does not transmit your project information, focus history, settings, or other locally stored data to the developer or to third-party servers.

FocusLedger does not collect:

- Personally identifiable information
- Health information
- Financial or payment information
- Authentication information
- Personal communications
- Location information
- Browsing history
- Website content
- Keystrokes, mouse activity, or other browsing activity

Analytics and Tracking

FocusLedger does not use third-party analytics, advertising trackers, or behavioral tracking technologies.

Payments and Support

FocusLedger may provide a link to an external payment service for users who voluntarily choose to support the project.

Payment transactions are handled entirely by the external payment provider. FocusLedger does not receive, store, or process credit card numbers, bank account details, or other payment credentials.

Data Sharing

FocusLedger does not sell, rent, or transfer user data to third parties.

User data is not used for advertising, creditworthiness, lending, or purposes unrelated to the extension's functionality.

Data Retention and Deletion

FocusLedger data is stored locally in the user's browser.

Users can remove locally stored FocusLedger data by clearing the extension's data or uninstalling the extension.

Changes to This Privacy Policy

This Privacy Policy may be updated if FocusLedger's features or data practices change. The latest version will be available at this page.

Contact

For questions about this Privacy Policy or FocusLedger, contact:

focusledger168@gmail.com