Press Release December 11, 2014:

Two British and Canadian charities team up to bring a donation of more than 30,000 books to Afghanistan

BOOKS FOR AFGHANISTAN

The Idries Shah Foundation

11 December 2014

Two British and Canadian charities team up to bring a donation of more than 30,000 books to Afghanistan.

After months of planning, and many more on the seas and roads between Europe and the Hindu Kush, a major donation of English-language books has reached its destination – the Afghan capital, Kabul.

Relating to Afghan culture, history and folklore, as well as Oriental themes, the books will be distributed free to public schools and libraries throughout Afghanistan. A kind of literary Ark, they are desperately needed.

They include titles such as Afghanistan of the Afghans, The Sufis, A Perfumed Scorpion, The World of Nasrudin, Afghan Caravan, The Alchemy of Happiness, Caravan of Dreams, Kara Kush and Alone in Arabian Nights.

Many of the titles come from the corpus of work written by Sayed Idries Shah. Regarded as Afghanistan's most influential and important twentieth century author, Shah died in 1996. His books have been translated into two-dozen languages and have sold more than 15 million copies worldwide.

The donation was made by THE IDRIES SHAH FOUNDATION, a London-based educational charity, registered in the United Kingdom; and the distribution will be facilitated by BOOKS WITH WINGS, a Canadian charity, based at the University of Manitoba, Faculty of Medicine.

“We believe that education will provide Afghanistan with the great future it deserves,” says Tahir Shah, speaking on behalf of The Idries Shah Foundation, “and that this cultural and literary project will seek to inspire successive generations who inherit Afghanistan.”

More and more Afghans are becoming Books With Wings Volunteers, both in Afghanistan and North America. Please see Dari and Pashto appeal towards the end of this document.

Please note that all books we send are donated by individuals. We cannot respond to requests for particular books. But we try to respond to requests for books in particular disciplines.

Who gets the Books With Wings books?

Decisions are made by a few criteria:

- 1) We must have a request for books from a university in Afghanistan from a person who will take responsibility for shipment of the books from Kabul when they arrive there, and assure the books will be available to students and professors.
- 2) A Books With Wings Chapter may decide which university in Afghanistan they are supporting, and can change this as circumstances change.
- 3) Members of the Books With Wings Afghanistan Chapter decide on distribution of uncommitted books.
- 4) We try to send books first to universities that have not received books previously.

Shipping Schedule

We tried two shipments in 2011 and had two problems: volunteer burnout, and insufficient cash for two shipments/year. We recommend shipment in March of each year, well before Spring exams for your student Volunteers.

Shipments by Canadian Forces ended in March, 2014.

All future shipping depends on our ability to raise about $20,000/year to send one 40 foot container per year from North America to Afghanistan. This could hold about 30,000 books. There are now 92 universities in Afghanistan, all needing books, a situation we expect to persist at least until 2025. If you are prepared to help with this fundraising effort, please contact Zobaida M. Hussain zobaida.mh@gmail.com or Richard Gordon DickGordonCan@gmail.com

History

Books With Wings was conceived in December, 2001. RG was watching a CNN TV interview of the head librarian at Kabul University. We were shown a single shelf of books remaining, with bullet holes in some of them. The reporter pulled one book off the shelf. It was Milton's "Paradise Lost". At the end of the interview the librarian turned to the camera and pleaded for people to send books. RG said to himself: "I can do that". He went to Vienna for a scientific meeting, returned to work jet lagged, and going down the stairs to his lab, just past the Dean's office, he turned around, deciding to see the Dean about how to get books to Afghanistan. As he turned, he broke three bones in his foot (metatarsals) and ended up in the nearby hospital instead. Recovering at home in bed, he had plenty of time to search the Web and phone people. It seemed the number one problem had by others collecting books for Afghanistan was that they got them donated easily enough, but had no way to get them to Afghanistan. Shipping to Afghanistan was, and remains, the central problem. Fortunately Canadian Forces agreed to ship books. When RG finally met with Dean of Medicine Brian Henderson, he suggested approaching the medical students, who took it on as a class project, and via their network spread it to medical students at most other universities in Canada. The University of Manitoba Neil John Maclean Health Sciences Library made a major contribution of duplicate books, which kicked things off.

Our initial name was MMSA (Manitoba Medical Student Association) International Health Group Kabul Medical Library Project, archived at:

<http://umanitoba.ca/faculties/medicine/kabul/>

Shira Taylor, then a medical student at the University of Toronto, was present at the tea held at the Kabul Medical Institute Library (now Kabul Medical University) when the 1700 books arrived in the summer of 2005. Our Advisor on all library matters, Atifa Rawan (<http://uanews.org/node/19718>), was also there and worked with the KMI Library staff organizing and shelving these newly arrived books. Shira started a similar book collection for Al-Beruny University, then we amalgamated under her heading: Books With Wings. The logo was designed by Andrew Deonarine.

Hundreds of volunteers in Canada, Afghanistan and the USA have been involved. For example, Mrs. Vicel Meregillano-Hicks (Catholic Relief Services) and Dr. Ahmad Zia Shams (Herat Medical Faculty) took the idea ahead in Herat, Afghanistan with Richard Gordon, and later on extended their efforts to other provinces/universities with more volunteers/contributors. About 20,000 up to date, mostly medical books have been sent (through 2014), worth about $3 million. We have started Books With Wings USA chapters. We are expanding to other disciplines besides medicine, and new Chapters are beginning in all three countries.

Cash Donations

Cash donations to Books With Wings are tax deductible via the University of Manitoba, which will issue a tax receipt honored by Canada. We need a volunteer to make a similar arrangement in the USA.

100% of all cash donations go for:

1. book labeling and packaging materials
2. shipping within North America
3. shipping to Kabul
4. shipping within Afghanistan
5. purchase of specialty books, such as midwifery and landmine injury books, that generally don't show up in donations
6. occasional pizza and drinks for volunteers.

Books With Wings has no paid staff: 100% volunteers.

If you would like to make a cash donation to Books With Wings please contact:

Starting a Books With Wings Chapter

Chapters operate autonomously except for coordination of shipping. You may organize yourselves any way you wish. Some chapters have formal roles and register as a student group at their university. This sometimes allows access to local campus funding and space to store and process books. As most students can volunteer for only one or two years, it is important to annually recruit new members. This is best done by making a short presentation at orientation sessions for incoming students. Some chapters interview candidates for leadership roles. You may want some division of labor. Typical tasks are:

1. Sorting and cataloging books. Each book takes about 10 minutes to catalog and label, and we typically try to aim at 1000 or so books per chapter per year. This takes roughly 10,000 minutes or about 170 hours of volunteer time. So you could easily use 10 to 20 volunteers per year. We highly recommend you recruit this many people. Otherwise the work is too much per person.

2. Setting criteria for sending books to Afghanistan. This depends on the discipline. In medicine we use the guideline that books must be no more than 10 years old or of lasting value (typically anatomy books, for instance). If you are collecting for other disciplines, get guidance on criteria from students or professionals in the area, and let us know (DickGordonCan@gmail.com).
3. Public Relations (PR). Get interviews about what you're doing in local and community newspapers (especially Afghan), TV stations and radio stations. Ask for book donations. Approach libraries for older editions they are discarding, publishers for excess stock, professors for sample textbooks they've received, and student used book depots and bookstores for unsold stock.
4. Book drop sites. We have found it useless to ask people to donate books in specific areas. If you want medical books, for instance, put a collection site at your medical library or medical bookstore. Use a locked drop box or keep shelving where surveillance is done, for instance at the entrance of a library or bookstore, else books will disappear.
5. Book sales. Our general experience is that about 1/3 of the books donated are worth sending to Afghanistan. When enough books accumulate that are not worth sending, hold a book sale. Pick a high traffic area. In the past we started at $2/book and went down over a 5 day period. A more successful model seems to be to ask people to make donations for the books they take. Try to get a university account to put the money in, typically $700 to $1500. Advertise widely and most of the books will be snarfed up, and your BWW Chapter will also gain recognition. Let people at the sale know where your drop points are for donated books, and let them know that cash donations are also needed. Clean up afterwards when done, so that you stay in the good graces of whoever gives you space for the book sale.
6. Fund raising. This is an art, at which we have not had great success. If you can get a volunteer who is skilled at it, put them to work. While doing your Public Relations, ask for both book and cash donations, emphasizing that the latter are tax deductible. Approach your local Student Union and Deans for group funds. Apply for grants that are appropriate. List all grants you get on your chapter's web pages, to publicly acknowledge them and so that others know where to apply again in subsequent years. Events that offer Afghan food (for a donation exceeding the cost of the food) will pull people in. It really tastes good. A speaker who is upbeat on Afghanistan is good to have. Combine fund raising with related organizations, such as Canadian Women for Women in Afghanistan <http://www.CW4WAfghan.ca>
7. Picture taking. It helps a lot if our recipients see who is helping them out. Take pictures and post them on our FaceBook web pages:
<http://www.facebook.com/groups/144095265683921/>
8. Preparation for shipping. Labelled books are sorted by their Library of Congress or National Library of Medicine catalog numbers, and packed in shelf order. This way they are ready to use on arrival. Details below.
9. Keeping in contact with your recipients. Use Skype when possible, e-mail, or Facebook, etc. Up to you. This helps ensure that there will be a person in Afghanistan who will see to it that your collected books are received and made available to students and faculty.

10. Keeping in contact with other chapters. Nearby chapters can often share shipping costs, and distant ones can help one another out by sharing cash. Student volunteers changing universities can make new contacts and help keep Books With Wings going.
11. Purchase of specialty books. This requires close contact with your recipients, because your spare cash (if any) is going to buy only a relatively few books. Pick titles with them. Ask your university bookstore or the publishers for discounts. Get them in time to include with the next shipment.
12. Purchase of supplies. Buy boxes, labels, mylars, tape, bookplates, etc. in bulk when appropriate. Share with other chapters when cost effective. Details below on what is needed.
13. Shipping within your country. Locating a trucker or friend who is willing to pull a U-Haul trailer, etc., who is going to San Francisco or Montreal and is willing to carry your books for free or a discount really helps. If they can stop by other chapters en route, so much the better.
14. Involve other student groups. Examples are local Afghan students, engineers, etc.
15. Replacing yourselves. Deliberately find volunteers who want to replace you when you can't volunteer anymore. Start with orientation sessions for incoming students and give a short, illustrated talk on Books With Wings. Meet with members of other chapters when you're travelling. Suggest that friends elsewhere start Books With Wings chapters.
16. If you like formal structure, see "Organization" at:
<http://www.umanitoba.ca/faculties/medicine/radiology/Kabul/kabulmedbooks/kabullibrary.htm>

If you are in a country other than Canada or the USA, your first task will be to find an agency, such as the military or an NGO, that ships lots of stuff to Afghanistan, and try to convince them to ship boxes of books for free to Afghanistan about once a year. Courier shipping is generally too expensive (about $300 per box).

Books With Wings Afghanistan Chapter

This Chapter has been organized by Dr. Bashir Ahmad bashirahmad07@gmail.com, Skype: bahmad011, and Dr. Mohammad Shafiq Faqeerzai faqeerzai@gmail.com, Skype: A1Shafiq, with the following functions. Please contact either of them to participate.

1. deciding which institutions of higher learning most need books from Books With Wings, and in what disciplines
2. requesting volunteers in North America to obtain and ship the requested books
3. distributing the books on arrival within Afghanistan

See Dari and Pashto appeal for Volunteers below.

Supplies Needed

Bookplates: peel off stickers 2.5x4 inches that go on the inside of the front cover of all the books being sent. Can be printed at places like Staples or label printers. Cheaper in bulk, and sharable with other chapters.

Designed by Ms. Soraya Atayee. For original file contact: DickGordonCan@gmail.com
 If you have labels printed, it is important to make sure that they will be readable. Some printing processes are too low in resolution. Work this out with your printer.

White labels: peel off stickers 1x2 inches go on spines of books, call numbers written carefully and clearly on these with fine tip black permanent marker, or computer printed if you want to take the trouble. Can be found at places like Staples or local label companies, for good prices in quantity.

Mylar (precut clear, transparent stickers): These adhesive mylars are to be put over white labels to ensure they stay on books. Test a sample to make sure the glue sticks and lasts. Dimensions should be 3x2". Ask your library acquisitions department where to get these.

Boxes

Dimensions: 17 1/4 x 11 1/4 x 8" 275 lb.

Heavy Duty Corrugated Boxes

This is our standard size and strength and an industry standard. Do not get any other size/strength of box. Your shipment may be restacked with others when it gets to its port of departure or is redistributed with Afghanistan. Boxes of different sizes don't stack well, and weaker boxes break open. Generally there is a substantial discount if you order 100 boxes. Check local suppliers or Internet. Watch shipping costs to get the boxes to you.

Pallets

Pallet size: 40x48"

Pallets can often be obtained free from your university shipping and receiving. Each pallet should contain no more than 80 boxes, each pallet must be wrapped in plastic (like heavy Saran Wrap). This will help to maintain the integrity of the pallets.

Other supplies: scissors, permanent markers (thick and thin tip), strong, clear packing tape, tape dispenser, pizza.

Preparation of Books and Boxes

Contact "Bashir Ahmad, M.D." <bashirahmad07@gmail.com> or Dr. Mohammad Shafiq Faqeerzai faqeerzai@gmail.com to determine where your books are most needed.

1. Select the books worth sending to Afghanistan (by criteria above)
2. Catalog each book (instructions below)
3. Shelve the books in catalog order
4. Split the books if going to more than once recipient, as appropriate per disciplines covered
5. When the whole shipment is ready, pack the books in shelf order
6. Number the boxes consecutively, in shelf order. It is a good idea to also put the call number of the first book it contains on each box
7. Label the box with the name of the school that is supposed to receive it
8. DO NOT label boxes with anything that identifies its source, except the letters BWW and letters identifying your donor school. This is because shipment of boxes labeled as coming from the USA or Canada presents a security risk and can be dangerous to the people handling them in Afghanistan.

Finding Catalog Numbers for Books

Library of Congress or national Library of Medicine catalog numbers are used. DO NOT use Dewey decimal numbers or anything else. We do cataloging because there are still few professional librarians in Afghanistan. Uncatalogued books often just sit in boxes on arrival.

Table 1. Typical Library of Congress/National Library of Medicine numbers have 4 parts:

One or two letters	Decimal	Letter/number combination	Year
QH	581.2	E78	1997
R	123	F697	2002

WW	140	T843p	1993

Steps to getting a National Library of Medicine (NLM)/Library of Congress (LC) number for books being sent to Afghanistan:

1. Check if the book meets criteria for being worth sending. If not, put it with others for the next book sale.
2. Check the spine of the book to see if it already has a label. Clean the label with an organic solvent if necessary or cover it with a new copied label.
3. Look inside the book on the back of the title page. Find a number matching the above format.
4. If you need to search online for the catalog #, bookmark the following web pages and try finding your book:

NLM: <http://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/nlmcatalog/advanced>

LC: <http://catalog.loc.gov/cgi-bin/Pwebrecon.cgi?DB=local&PAGE=First>

WorldCat: <http://www.worldcat.org/advancedsearch>

5. If these don't work, give up. Put a blank label on the book (see below) but with no mylar, and put it in a separate pile. Try to ask a professional librarian to construct an LC # for you.
6. Label the book. Use white labels about 2cm wide and 4cm tall, or about 1x3 inches. Write the # in clear printing with a fine felt-tip pen with permanent ink as follows, on a stick-on white label. Write the letters and numbers as large as will fit:

140
T843p
1993

7. Place the label on the spine of the book (or on the front cover, if it's too narrow), so it doesn't cover the author or title.
8. Cover the label with a clear precut mylar tape. Clear packing tape may be used if you can't get the mylars.
9. Place a stick-on Books With Wings bookplate inside the front cover of the book, elsewhere if it would cover up useful information.
10. Shelve the book in Library of Congress/NLM order.

Directory of Books With Wings Volunteers in Charge

The “person in charge” for recipients helps with receiving books, and makes sure they are available to students and professors. Also helps contact Books With Wings chapters in North America about disciplines in which books are needed, and is expected to be a member of Books With Wings Afghanistan.

The “person in charge” for chapters is expected to coordinate with other chapters and recipients so that books are fairly distributed, and the greatest needs met first. They should also find their own replacements when necessary, in a timely fashion, so that their chapter has some chance of continuing to function.

به رضاکاران افغان پروګرام کتابهای بالدار

اگر مایل هستید تا تعداد بیشتری کتاب از کانادا و امریکا به پوهنتون های افغانستان روان شوند، لازم است تا با
دوستانی که در امریکای شمالی دارید در تماس شده و بیینید که ایا می توانند در محل های کار/تحصیل خود شروع
به جمع آوری کتاب کنند یا خیر. تعداد کتابهایی که توسط رضاکاران برحال ما جمع آوری می شوند بسیار کمتر از
آن است که بتوانیم به تمامی تقاضاها از داخل افغانستان پاسخگو باشیم. معلومات بیشتر در مورد درخواست ها
برای کتاب را درینجا یافته می توانید

لطفا با دوستان خود در کانادا و امریکا در تماس شده و آنها را به ایجاد شعبه های نو برای کتابهای بالدار تشویق کنید. برای تماس با ما می توانید از آدرس های ذیل استفاده کنید:

Dear Afghan Books With Wings Volunteers,
If you want more books sent to the universities of Afghanistan from Canada and the USA, we need you to put some work into recruiting colleagues in North America to start Books With Wings Chapters there. The requests for books far exceed the capacity of current volunteers to collect and deliver so many. See:

Books With Wings Manual:

https://docs.google.com/document/d/1dEq1B4TfvcDF7-8-RVWNgbdXdvtUbPBwnVHSRIUHtzY/edit?hl=en\_US

We need you to volunteer to contact your friends in Canada and the USA to encourage them to collect and send books, by starting chapters of Books With Wings. If you wish to take on this task, please contact us.

Thanks.

Yours,
