REPRODUCIBLE

Use the following tool in figure 3.1 to organize your thoughts for the start of an upcoming meeting. What do you want your colleagues to think, do, say, and feel within those first few minutes of the meeting? Then craft the initial activity based on your thinking (see inclusion for more details on this strategy).

Think	Do
Say	Feel
Based on the above, how will you start the meeting to create synchronicity and group rapport? Use the space below to create your script for the opening of the meeting.

Source: Revised based on the work of Kendall Zoller (2022). Used with permission.
Figure 3.1: Think-Do-Say-Feel