EDUC 1591 Title of Course:	Empowering Right Brain Learners
1 CREDIT Date of Course:	June 21-22, 2021

Description: No matter what you teach, you have come across struggling learners. Despite your many efforts, you still feel helpless. Some have been in RTI or Special Education for most of their school careers. You can help these “Right Brain” learners with simple energy-sparing strategies. If you are ready to learn alternative teaching methods that can easily be implemented into any learning environment, you won’t want to miss this class, This class will improve behavior and will reduce academic stress for your entire class!

Text: None

Outcomes:

Participants will learn how to identify “Right Brain” Learners.

Participants will learn strategies that require less energy to learn.

Participants will develop a plan to implement new strategies as part of the framework of their learning environment.

Requirements to meet outcomes:

Points:

Participants will be expected to write a 2 page paper summarizing what they learned, what they want to know more about, what they plan to change in their classrooms to support right brain/struggling learners, and how long they will try it.
