

Equipment and Supply Recommendations

Version 1.0

Starting out on a student level instrument is fine, as long as it is in good shape. Any music store generally will only rent out good, high quality student instruments. And, if they need repair, often this is included in the rental price. There are many good student, intermediate and professional brands out there, but the instruments I have listed below, I either have personally tried it and can confirm that it is a good instrument, or have it on very good authority that it is a good instrument. I highly recommend that after 6th grade, you seriously consider upgrading your instrument to ones I have listed below.

It should be noted that mouthpiece upgrades should happen BEFORE an instrument upgrade. The exception here is flute: you need to have a good flute before a head joint upgrade. It is important you are playing on good reeds, and good mouthpieces. This will have a HUGE effect on your sound quality.

Lastly, to get the best personalized equipment recommendations, we highly recommend that you seek out a private teacher on your instrument. They can work with you specifically in where you are in your musical ability, and recommend to you the equipment that will work best FOR YOU.

Clarinet Reeds-

6th Grade- 2.5-3 Strength Vandoren Traditional (blue) box

7th-8th Grade- 3-3.5 Strength Vandoren Traditional (blue) box

Alto Sax Reeds-

6th- 2.5 Strength Vandoren Traditional (blue) box

7th-8th- 2.5-3 Strength Vandoren Traditional (blue) box

Jazz- 2.5-3 Strength Rico (orange) box

Tenor Sax/ Bass Clarinet Reeds-

6th-8th Grade- 2.5 Strength Vandoren Traditional (blue) box

Jazz- 2.5 Strength Rico (orange) box, or 2.5 Legere Signature Cut

Bari Saxophone Reeds-

2.5-3 Legere Signature Cut

-you have to experiment with what strength works best for you

Synthetic Reeds-

ABSOLUTELY try them out. Some people like them, some don't. I recommend Legere Signature Cut. Try out a strength .25 less than the cane reed strength you currently play on.

Instruments

Investing in a good, quality instrument will help you enjoy band, and provide you with a solid foundation in music. Playing on a bad, or low quality instrument invites frustration, and long term, can actually be more expensive than a higher priced, high quality instrument, due to extensive repairs needed on an instrument that breaks often due to the less-than-stellar craftsmanship and low quality materials used to make it. Below are highly suggested instruments, but not an exhaustive list. The suggested grades next to them are what we would recommend, but if you take good care of your instrument (see Periodic Instrument Care), then these instruments can last a very long time. We do encourage you to look into "step up" instruments as you enter high school as you will be a better player, and some student-entry instruments will actually hold you back as your skills become more advanced.

Flute

6th-7th Grade- Yamaha YFL-222 Standard Flute

7th-High School- Yamaha YFL-462 Intermediate Flute, Offset G, B-Foot

High School-College- Yamaha 577H Series Professional Offset G, C# trill, Split E Gizmo

Headjoint upgrades for flutes (not student level flutes) is a fantastic way to upgrade without spending money on a new flutes

Oboe- Any Buffet or Fox brand Oboe, or Yamaha 841 Custom

Getting a student model Oboe is not a good investment and should be avoided.

Bassoon- Any Fox brand Bassoon. Yamaha does make good bassoons, but be sure to do research. Moosmann is also a good bassoon brand.

 Getting a student model Bassoon is not a good investment and should be avoided.
