One of the most challenging parts of this project for me was finding good logos. The problem I was facing was that my essay topic was a fictional theme park featuring dinosaurs. Finding good numbers to support a theme park that does not exist, featuring an extinct animal was quite the endeavor. I had to get creative with the types of solutions I was proposing. They had to be real, viable solutions that could apply to a make-believe problem. The way I did this was by researching surveillance technology used in the world today. I found these technologies and included the necessary information that could support my claim that Jurassic World was unsafe. Another way I was able to circumvent the issue I was facing was by coming up with my data. I watched the movie a lot while researching my topic (it was an important part of the process, my primary source). I drew up a pie chart that showed the number of fatalities in the movie. It broke them down based on the dinosaur that did the killing. This became a very good source of logos for my project. Overall, I think I handled the challenges well and came up with a solid solution and well-rounded essay.
