

Restoring Strength, Rebuilding Hope

In the afternoon, the sound of children laughing can once again be heard from a small village in Patnitala, where six-year-old Apon Kormokor runs across the field with his younger brother and friends. His cheerful smile and playful energy have returned, bringing joy not only to his family but also to those around him. Looking at Apon today, it is difficult to imagine that only a few days ago his family was struggling through painful days of hunger and poverty.

Apon lives with his parents and younger brother in a small home in the village. His father, Noyon Kormokor, is a day laborer and the only earning member of the family. His mother, Sumi Kormokar, is a housewife who takes care of the children and manages their home. Noyon spends long hours working under the hot sun whenever work is available, yet his earnings are uncertain and often too little to support the family properly. Many evenings, he returned home exhausted with barely enough money to buy food for the next day.

As financial hardship increased, the family's food supply became smaller and smaller. Apon's mother constantly worried about how she would feed her children. Some nights, she stayed awake thinking and praying to God for His help and for better days for her family.

In the midst of these difficult days, Apon's family received a meal package from "Feed the Hunger." While receiving the box, Sumi could not stop expressing her gratitude. With tears in her eyes, she shared how valuable and meaningful this food was for their family during such a difficult time. She immediately prepared a warm meal while Apon and his younger brother sat nearby, eagerly watching the food cook. The whole family sat together and happily enjoyed the meal, something they had not experienced in a long time.

Gradually, small but beautiful changes began appearing in Apon's life. The next morning, he woke up with more energy and smiled throughout the day. The quiet sadness that once filled their home slowly faded away, replaced by laughter and joy. Seeing their children healthy, active and smiling again gave Apon's parents renewed strength and hope to continue facing life's challenges.

Although the family still faces financial hardship, they are no longer without hope. Apon's parents are deeply thankful for the kindness and support they received through "Feed the Hunger." The meal package brought more than food to their family, it restored hope for the future. Most importantly, they are grateful to God for answering their prayers and bringing comfort, hope and care to their family during such a difficult time.
