

ESTONIAN SEARCH CRAFTING

by bobinsky01 (sacha)

IMPORTANT: The main purpose of this document is to show the crafts that this language has. I highly recommend using other languages due to this having a lot of unnecessary inputs which many may find offputting / other languages do better.

Also, thank you to 7astrid for the general format, Unassumed for the discovery of the language, and Meebie and Smaltine for some crafts!

ENCHANTS (i apologize in advance but im tryna make you remember this):

Looting: saagikogumine (you can think of it as like famous character KOGU)

Feather falling: Sulgkerge kukkumine (you can think of this as like the floor is a KUK for letting you use pearls)

Thorns: okkad (sounds like it would be thorns cuz of the sharp sounds, but idk)

Mending: paikamine (you can think of it like you PAI for your axe to get repaired)

Fire Aspect: tulevõim (your sword is a TUL that can cook food)

Silk Touch: Siidjas Puudutus (a girl touches me like silk, therefore i give her my SIID)

Depth Strider: suegavusliugleja (the last part sounds kinda like Glide, so you glide through water easier?)

Unbreaking: Murdmatus (you get to MURDer more netherrack)

Efficiency: tõhusus (you get tõ mine things faster)

Curse of binding: seotuse needus (you NEEDUS SEOTUSE (need to see this) enchantment, because you will be stuck with it forever)

Protection: kaitse (better wear protection if you dont wanna get KAITSE [it sounds like an STD lowks])

Sharpness: Teravus (sharpness 4 or 5 will be TERAbles for blades)

Silverfish: MAJASOOMUKAS (majahapit, mapajahit, mahapajit, maja... SOOMUKAS?)

Piglin cries: Piglin TAANDUB (you wont get the DUB when you hear this)

Charlie Kirk's Name Sign is "Cock Penis." Sign. His. Name.

Let's Set the Stage First

Wildfires ravaged the Los Angeles area between January 7 and January 31 of this year.

On January 8, during that day's episode of The Charlie Kirk Show, Charlie Kirk made a comment suggesting that ASL interpreters on TV broadcasts are distracting and should be eliminated.

The deaf community responded swiftly and with near-unity. Many scoffed at Kirk and called him an idiot for not understanding that ASL is a primary language for many deaf people—and that access to it is essential.

The Spark...

Last week, Charlie Kirk made a stop at Oklahoma State University (OSU) as part of his American Comeback Tour.

He held his usual media event, where he interacted directly with the audience. Logan Evans, a local deaf person, seized the opportunity to confront Kirk about his with-it-era comment that ASL interpreters should be removed because closed captions already exist.

Kirk responded in a surprisingly conciliatory way. He said that after seeing the deaf community's reaction, he reached out to a deaf person who explained that ASL is many deaf individuals' primary language. Therefore, ASL interpreters on emergency broadcasts are critical for delivering life-saving information.

Kirk claimed he had learned from the experience—and this is how empathizes with the need for interpreter access during emergencies.

This was unexpected, especially given Kirk's typically combative personality. Most people assumed he'd double down. Logan and Kirk exchanged a few more comments. Then, at the end, Logan told Kirk he'd like to give him a sign name.

The sign name Logan gave him was an initialized combination of the letters "C" and "K" on the nose.

Before moving on further, I want to acknowledge the diversity of this subreddit. Not all of us are immersed in the ASL-based Deaf world—so I'll break it down clearly.

In ASL, the sign name Logan gave Charlie Kirk breaks down as:

Cock – The letter "C" tapped on or near the nose can be interpreted as "cock." It's not a standard or widely accepted sign for "cock," but in this context, that's the intended meaning.

Penis – The handshape for "K" is very similar to "P." In ASL, the official sign for "penis" is the letter "P" on the nose. So signing "K" on the nose closely resembles that—effectively making it a visual pun.

So the sign name Logan gave Kirk? It translates in ASL to: "Cock Penis."
