

A guide to freelance opportunities at Android Central, Windows Central, and iMore

The Mobile Tech Vertical at Future PLC is comprised of Android Central, Windows Central, and iMore. We are always looking for amazing freelancers who can contribute to our core mandate of informing, entertaining, and helping people spend their money on the right products.

In this list, I'll break down our freelance opportunities by site, with an explanation of each one and what to expect.

If you have any questions, please email Al Sacco.

Windows Central

Microsoft 365 guides writer: Windows Central is seeking a freelance contributor to help cover everything under the Microsoft Office umbrella, including how-to guides, tips, comparisons, and maintenance of existing content. If you're a competent writer and you're passionate about everything under the Office umbrella, from Word to OneNote and Excel, this is the place for you.

PC Build specialist: Windows Central is looking for a freelance contributor who can cover everything that goes into building your own PC. If graphics cards, PSUs, and motherboards are your favorite topics of conversation, then this is the role for you. A good fit for this role will be a solid writer who can explain not only what makes a $1,000 GPU great, but why you may be better off going with a budget option instead.

Laptop guides writer: Windows Central is seeking a freelance contributor to help cover everything under the Windows laptop umbrella, including how-to guides, reviews, product roundups, and maintenance of existing content. If you're a competent writer and you're passionate about the latest Windows notebooks, convertibles, gaming laptops, docking stations, monitors, and other accessories, this is the place for you.

3D Printing writer: Windows Central is currently seeking a 3D Printer pro to handle the creation of new how-to guides, reviews, and maintenance of existing content. The ideal writer will be intimately familiar with the ins and outs of 3D printing, product and accessory recommendations, and have a passion for the growing 3D printing community.

APPLY TO THESE ROLES HERE

iMore

iOS gaming writer: Do you have familiarity with Apple Arcade and the App Store? Do you often play games on your phone? We're looking for a freelancer to write editorials, reviews, and occasionally news on the iOS gaming ecosystem! We're looking for somebody with experience writing editorial content on games and who (of course) has access to iOS!

Nintendo guides writer: Do you love Nintendo? Do you have a passion for video games as a whole? iMore is looking for a dedicated Nintendo writer that can cover everything the platform has to offer, from the console itself, to games, and even accessories like cases and amiibo. If you're somebody who can discuss why the new Switch rumors are interesting or wants to break down the best builds in Monster Hunter Rise, we'd like to hear from you. Access to iOS is not required, but a plus.

Accessibility writer: iMore is looking for someone with a real understanding of accessibility technology, both hardware and software, as well as Apple's efforts in this arena. Experience and a willingness to test and review accessibility products for their effectiveness would make a candidate stand out, including specific experience with Apple software and hardware products.

APPLY TO THESE ROLES HERE

GarageBand writer: This will be someone with extensive experience with Apple's GarageBand software for Mac, iPhone, and iPad. We're looking for someone who knows the ins and outs of GarageBand and is passionate about sharing their expertise with a wider audience. This could be everything from the basics of making music in GarageBand to advanced troubleshooting techniques.

Guides writer: The ideal candidate has experience with Apple hardware and software, and an interest in diving into their devices to discover how different features work. Work in this position will cover everything from basic how-tos to more advanced aspects of working devices. Owning or having access to Apple devices, particularly an iPhone, is a must.

APPLY TO THESE ROLES HERE

Android Central

Android news writer: Are you interested in mobile tech? Do you like to stay up to date with the latest news? Are you always looking for the next big scoop? Then we would love to hear from you! We are looking for U.S. (or North America)-based writers who are passionate about Google, know the ins and outs of Android hardware and software, and aren't afraid to get into the politics of Big Tech. Candidates should be able to scope out newsworthy content and get it up quickly, efficiently, and accurately. You must also be comfortable reaching out to companies and sources whenever necessary. Afternoon availability is a plus. Previous experience is not required but always helps!

Google services expert: If you live and breathe Google's services, from Gmail to Maps to Photos to Workspace, we'd love to have your expertise on our team. We are looking for a writer to build guides and how-to content for all of Google's services, helping our readers better understand and use the company's vast suite of tools.

APPLY TO THESE ROLES HERE

Future MTV Freelance Network Rate Pay Scale by Category

News ----- $20 to $50 per article

Deals ----- $30 to $50 per article

Help & How-to content ----- $40 to $140 per article

Editorial content ----- $75 to $500 per article

Product / Game preview ----- $120 per article

Product / Game review ----- $120 to $500 per article

Buyer's guide ----- $65 to $450 per article

NOTE: All rates documented here are subject to change and may be negotiated with your assigning editor. Once onboarded, a more thorough breakdown of rates will be provided.