Period	Planned activity	Description / Expected output
JANUARY 2027 – PREPARATION
4–8 January	Project planning and coordination	Establish the implementation team, develop the work plan and prepare campaign materials.
11–15 January	Stakeholder engagement and partnerships	Engage libraries, academic institutions and information professionals to establish potential partnerships and support.
18–22 January	Campaign promotion and participant recruitment	Publicise the campaign and recruit librarians, researchers, students and Wikimedia contributors.
25–29 January	Training preparation and article identification	Prepare training materials, identify Wikipedia articles requiring references and finalise workshop logistics.
FEBRUARY 2027 – IMPLEMENTATION
1–5 February	Campaign launch and participant orientation	Officially launch the campaign and introduce participants to #1Lib1Ref objectives and contribution guidelines.
8–12 February	Online training workshop	Train participants on Wikipedia referencing, reliable sources, information literacy and citation techniques.
15–19 February	Physical editing workshop	Conduct practical Wikipedia editing sessions focused on adding reliable references to existing articles.
20–24 February	Online editing and mentorship	Provide continued technical guidance and mentorship to participants.

25–28 February	Final editing drive and contribution review	Encourage final contributions and conduct an initial review of references added and articles improved.
MARCH 2027 – EVALUATION AND REPORTING
1–10 March	Contribution verification and data collection	Verify contributions, review citations and consolidate participant and editing statistics using Wikimedia tracking tools.
11–17 March	Project evaluation and reflection	Assess achievements against project objectives, identify challenges and gather participant feedback.
18–24 March	Documentation and report preparation	Prepare the project report, document lessons learned and develop recommendations for future activities.
25–31 March	Results dissemination and project closure	Share project outcomes with participants, partners and the wider Wikimedia community.