

Ray of Light

Running out of our time we love and care,
Days drift, repeat, and blend altogether.
Lonely, withhold all hope, no one is there,
The time we had now gone, here without her.

The old ways of my life were not so bright,
My heart, a place empty to hold someone.
Ray of white light to hold me through the night,
Appeared, banished the dark like a great sun.

But now the dark returns to me today,
Now she left me here to fend on my own.
She leaves my world and lets it all decay.
Now she is gone, dark finds me all alone.

She fades away in her fear of heart break,
But it makes me stronger even with the ache.
