
Grammar Mastery: Semicolons, Colons, & Commas HyperDoc

1. Engage – Let's Warm Up!

👉 Mentimeter Poll:

- Go to Mentimeter.
- Answer the following questions:
 - Which punctuation mark do you feel most confident using: semicolon, colon, or comma?
 - Which one confuses you the most?
- Check the live results to see how your classmates feel!

2. Explore – Learn Together!

👉 Padlet Collaboration:

- Visit our class Padlet.
- Look for the three columns labeled Semicolons, Colons, and Commas.
- Your task:
 1. Post examples of each punctuation mark from books, social media, articles, or your own writing.

2. Comment on at least two classmates' posts—are their examples correct? Can you add suggestions or questions?

3. Explain – Show What You Know!

Google Slides:

- Create a Google Slides Presentation that you can screen share with the group.
 - In your video, choose one of the 3 punctuation marks, include:
 - A basic rule or definition.
 - Two correct examples.
 - One common mistake people make.
 - Watch two classmates' presentations and leave a comment or question on the Schoology Discussion post.

4. Elaborate – Choice Board Extension

Pick ONE activity from the board below to deepen your learning:

Choice	Activity Description
 Creative Writing	Write a funny or dramatic paragraph that uses at least 3 semicolons, 2 colons, and 5 commas correctly. Highlight each punctuation mark.
 Grammar Guru Podcast	Record a mini podcast (2-3 mins) teaching younger students how to use one punctuation mark (semicolon, colon, or comma).
 Punctuation in the Wild	Take screenshots or pictures of real-life examples of punctuation (books, signs, menus, articles). Label whether they are correct or incorrect. Explain why.
 Fix It Challenge	Create a short paragraph full of punctuation mistakes. Swap with a partner to edit, then check each other's work.

Meme It!

Design a grammar meme about semicolons, colons, or commas. Use Canva, Google Drawings, or a meme generator. Include a caption explaining the rule.

5. Evaluate – Exit Ticket Check-In

Complete the digital exit ticket.

- Reflect on today's learning:
 - Which punctuation mark do you feel most confident with now?
 - What still confuses you?
 - Write one correct sentence using either a semicolon, colon, or comma.
