

A little about me, I am a mother, wife and passionate relationship builder. My career, no matter where I've been, has always catered to learning and adapting as I am constantly developing professionally. Nothing makes me happier than knowing I helped someone else reach their goals and be successful.

My experience is rich with variety in size and industry and among all my role has always been that of the relationship builder, Account Executive or Business Development. I can pull from knowledge in manufacturing, insurance, recruiting, consumer packaged goods, digital media and executive coaching all for companies with as many as 5 employees to a $2.5B publicly traded company and everything in between.

I thrive on connection and have a desire to make the most of my career and help my current company reach their stretch goals.
