Last year, my school celebrated Indonesia's Independence Day with great enthusiasm. In the morning, all students and teachers gathered in the schoolyard for a flag ceremony. After the ceremony, the most exciting part began: the traditional games competition.

I decided to join the cracker-eating contest. There were ten participants in my group. When the whistle blew, I quickly tried to eat the dangling cracker without using my hands. It was very slippery and kept moving around, which made everyone laugh. Even though I didn't win first place, I managed to finish third.

It was a super fun and memorable day. I was happy because I could participate and celebrate our country's birthday together with my friends.
