

O.I.T

Office of Information and Travel

The O.I.T (Office of Information and Travel) Was created by Ballin Baldrick, he looked back at the days where he and his family had moved into the city. His family got slaughtered on the streets and Baldrick got taken in as a grant for a while. In his time there he noticed that being legal and doing hard work does make your profit, eventually it made him enough money to start up a charity like the O.I.T He started it up in the City Hall, where most new people would go, his first customers thought that it was a scheme to scam them but they still took up the charity's offers and started spreading the word of the O.I.T Baldrick's company was going great he was handing out money to the poor taking loans investing. But since they were a charity they didn't get a source of income so that's when Baldrick took up the job to find some sponsorships.
