

How The Stolen Generations Started

The Stolen Generation were a generation of indigenous Australians who were taken from their families when young and sent to white people's homes to live. They started taking indigenous kids in 1905 and it continued till around 1970. They have found documentation saying that the aboriginals were dying off since there were a lot less aboriginals after the white people came. A man called A.O Neville who was the chief protector of aboriginals thought that if the aboriginals were given white jobs and married whites the aboriginals would be mixed into white society.
