Malaysian Bronies Society 2nd Meetup Report
20th November 2011 @ Sunway Pyramid

~by Fluttershy

Dear Princess Celestia,

Today was quite an interesting day indeed. There was a meetup scheduled at McDonald's in Sunway Pyramid, set time was at 2pm. Fluttershy decided to "buck traffic, arrive earlier at 12pm" but that didn't turn out as planned and she arrived at around 1pm after finding a parking spot on the roof. The weather team decided that the sun wasn't shining bright enough so they decided to make it 20% hotter.

Upon arrived at the fast food giant, Fluttershy found 8 other ponies seated among the crowded restaurant. Huzzah! The fun begins with the ordering of nourishment: a typical meal consisting of a protein source wrapped between buns, tubers fried in vegetable oil and a fizzy pop of a drink. During this time, discussions were opened and common interests sought. The topic of computer games cropped up, and words were shared about things like Skyrim, Minecraft, Modern Warfare 3 and others.

As time passed, our small group grew to a maximum number of 16 or 17 members. One brony came with a cake, and this was no ordinary cake. It is large, square and full of creamy goodness and most importantly, it has ponies drawn all over it. Yay! We then decided it was time to invite over some ponies (the toys, not the people) for a photo shoot. Photo Finish would have been proud of our handiwork. To top it off, the same brony who provided the cake also gave out Cutie Mark stickers. The CMCs would have been so jealous. A big thank you to Xen Gk for his contributions; it certainly made the whole event at least 200% more awesome.

Included in the photo-shoot were the entire Mane 6, a mini-Applejack, a giant Twilight Sparkle and Spike. Rarity's mane was a little messy because she forgot to style it before coming, but that's okay because all of us really liked her mane. Curious onlookers could only watch in awe as the ponies posed to show off their fabulosity.

As delicious cake was consumed, we shared our pony related things. Some of us had pony shirts. There was a Rainbow Dash Cutie Mark emblem for a bag. There was a Rainbow Dash pin. There were pictures pony related stuff on things like computers, cars and the like. Basically: Ponies, ponies everywhere. As time went on the group grew in numbers. One brony, well versed in the royal Canterlot voice, greeted us warmly with his presence.

At about 3.30pm we decided it was time to leave for a group photo-shoot. We decided to raid the local Toys R' Us (which, was a small 'Express' store here) and very large cameras were used. After we took the pictures, we checked out the ponies in the store. Somepony bought a set. Free air-conditioning was acquired and most of us felt relieved. Around this time, some of us had to leave for other matters. So, our group dwindled to about two-thirds of its original number. The rest of us decided to try to check out the local Parkson store for ponies; a few of us bought stuff. A near unfortunate incident involving a Mister Potatohead was avoided. Oh, and somepony thinks the cashier glitched out and gave us a 6 bucks discount. Who knows what really happened, but two things for sure is this: ponies were acquired, fun was had.

We then adjourned to find a new spot to watch the latest episode of MLP:FiM which was 'May the Best Pet Win!' Others decided to leave early, leaving our group to about half of its original members. Unfortunately we forgot to ask for their contact numbers, so we couldn't persuade them to stay. We decided to hang out at the local Starbucks, but it was buck full of humans so we walked to the other side of the shopping complex to the local Subway. It was a long and arduous journey; we stopped by the MPH bookstore (no Sparkle World magazines there) and Toy City (no ponies there) before sitting our plots down on a café outside of Subway.

Some drinks were guzzled, a cupcake was nommed and most importantly, a fun time was had. We learnt that the din of the shopping complex will drown out the sound emanating from an iPad, making listening to the dialogue difficult. Still, we only need one word to justify that the event was awesome: Ponies.

As the time approached to 5.30pm, it was about time to end our wonderful session together. A few of us traded entertainment media by mating our external hard drives with a host and transferring bits of the digital kind. Farewells were said, and we adjourned, declaring that the 2nd Malaysian Bronies Society Meetup was very successful. Huzzah!

Links:
Photo Gallery (on Facebook):
https://www.facebook.com/media/set/?set=oa.216894148379258&type=1
Video: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uyyeVVfJzQg
Facebook group: https://www.facebook.com/groups/140792002656140/

MBS4th Meetup:
https://docs.google.com/document/d/1Gs5N1BtQHEZNTTn7iT9aiviOfBfxa5dibY2S_6wUTHA/edit
New Year 2011 Party:
http://www.drivethesensation.com/2012/01/magic-makes-it-all-complete.html
MBS 3rd Meetup:
https://docs.google.com/document/d/1LwrilgJ3aOIvS3x89PvkGceyd63hbJGY47PqGTHD60s/edit?hl=en_GB
MBS 2.5 Meetup:
https://docs.google.com/document/d/1c8OJZn0eJxGDNehvJeVxPE2nZ5o1kqFr796YEqZ6-2A/edit?hl=en_GB
MBS 1st Meetup: Found on MBS Facebook page

Roll-call:

1. Azfar Daniel
2. Mel Hilton
3. Tee Min Tong
4. Mamat Terer
5. Xen Gk
6. James Rinzler
7. Lheartburger Aquila
8. Low Weiyan
9. Pinkie Cumberdale
10. Fluttershy
11. Ian Cheah
12. Rick Brony
13. ZhiSheng Chow
14. Sara Leong

And 2 – 3 guests