

PROPOSED SCRIPT: The three subtleties behind not giving a fuck

Scene	Script (Narrator = Mark)	Visuals
Opening	Three Subtleties of Not Giving a F. Sounds bold, right? But stay with me—this is about living your best life with intention.	Calm music plays in the background. Text fades in on screen.
2	Subtlety one: Be different, not indifferent. Here's the truth: indifference isn't strength—it's fear. It's avoidance. You must care about something in life, but the power lies in choosing what you care about. Focus your energy on what truly matters to you.	Light, upbeat background music. Minimalist animations illustrating a heart and a "yes/no" decision.
3	Subtlety two: Transcend adversity. Pick your battles. Save your energy for what moves the needle in your life. Does it really matter if the grocery cashier was rude? Or that you're out of ketchup? Probably not. Instead, focus on the people, dreams, and causes that truly deserve your time and effort.	A small storm animation transitions to an uplifting image of sunlight breaking through clouds.
4	Subtlety three: The choice is always yours. Every single day, you're choosing where to invest your energy. So make it count. Wisdom isn't about giving up—it's about giving strategically.	A crossroads symbol appears, with two paths diverging. The camera pans to follow one path.
5	And here's the conclusion: It's okay to suck. Seriously. Nobody starts out great at anything. Whether it's learning a skill or navigating life's challenges, it's okay to stumble, fail, and even suck a little. Own your imperfections—they're part of being human.	A sad face fades in, followed by cheerful animations of progress like books, plants growing, or practice leading to mastery.
Closing	As I always say: 'You can't be an important and life-changing presence for some people without also being a joke and embarrassment to others.' So stop worrying about the noise. Embrace your priorities. Live intentionally.' The secret to freedom? Choosing wisely what you care about.	Text on screen with the quote and gentle music in the background. Text fades out, and a final tagline appears. Music fades.