

HGH (promo info for the website)

None of us can live normally without a sufficient level of somatotrophic hormone. Most often, it is called growth hormone or bptropin.

What's HGH? Growth hormone is an active protein that occupies an essential place in the body regarding metabolism and the production of new cells. Its synthesis occurs in the pituitary gland, affecting the processes directly in the brain.

Simply put, there's nothing like HGH by Balkan Pharmaceuticals for improving your health!

What is HGH?

Human growth hormone is formed in the pituitary gland. It is responsible for developing one's growth, regulating metabolic processes, including the breakdown of proteins, fats, and carbohydrates, and the work of the endocrine glands. The highest hormone concentration is observed in childhood, when the baby is actively growing. However, it is crucial to monitor its concentration in adulthood.

The growth hormone level is maximal during puberty, after which it steadily decreases with age. Therefore, recombinant HGH is widely applied in medicine, cosmetology, and sports (bodybuilding, fitness, powerlifting, and some other fields).

Functions of HGH

The functions of bptropin are:

- activation of insulin-like growth factor (IGF-1) synthesis in the liver;
- increase in linear bone growth;
- activates protein synthesis in muscles;
- reduction of protein catabolism;
- reduction of subcutaneous fat deposition;
- stimulation of glucose production by the liver.

Besides, growth hormone injections by Balkan pharmaceuticals help athletes achieve high results.
