INTRODUCTION

Articles written using notes as citations from previous studies. The introduction contains basic information on the urgency of the issue that led to the writing of the study/research. It is written in Arial Narrow 12 font, with 1.15 spacing between paragraphs, and each paragraph begins with a word indented approximately 1 cm from the left margin of each column/paragraph. There should be no tables, images, or graphs in the introduction, and no numbers or letters should extend beyond the paragraph.

METHOD

The content of the study method includes data collection techniques, data sources, data analysis methods, correlation tests, and so on, summarised in a single paragraph, written in Arial Narrow 12 font with 1.15 spacing. Scientific formulas used for data analysis/correlation tests may also be included in this method.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The main discussion contains the results and discussion, written in Arial Narrow 12 font, 1.15 spacing. The results are not raw data, but data that has been processed/analysed using established methods. In the discussion, do not use numbers or letters in separate sentences; if they are present, include them in the sentence or paragraph. Example:

Social Stratification of Indigenous Peoples

Determination of Clan. A clan is an identity of indigenous peoples in maintaining their status in society, etc. If there is an interview transcript, it must include the following text:

Social stratification in indigenous communities is evident in the division of roles based on age, gender, and social status. In interviews, several indigenous leaders mentioned that the rights and obligations of community members are differentiated, with high respect given to indigenous leaders and those who possess traditional knowledge (Interview results dated x, month, year) space 1.

Indigenous People's Rights. They have the right to realise, practise, develop and teach their traditions, customs and spiritual and religious ceremonies, etc.

Changes in Indigenous Communities

Indigenous communities are permanent and organised communities whose members are not only bound to a particular area of residence, etc.

Or if there are quotations that describe small points, they are written in sentences, for example (Selo Soemardjan, 2021) explains as follows: 1) ...; 2) ....; 3) .. or a) ...; b) ...; c) ...

Discussion is a comparison of the results obtained with the concepts/theories in the literature review. The content of the results and discussion includes statements, tables (horizontal lines), images, diagrams, graphs, sketches, and so on, using Roman numerals I, II, etc. (if any). It is recommended that numbering in sub-discussions not be written too much.
