I remember the night when a tornado destroyed Greensburg in nine minutes flat. All of my things, our house, everything was blown thousands of feet into the air. When it was all over and we climbed out of our shelter in the basement, everyone's past had been swept away. Suddenly the entire town of Greensburg had no future.

Eleven people died because of the storm. ⁶It took twelve people to lift a truck off Mr. Schmidt's house. ⁷It was like a huge bomb had gone off. Our school was destroyed just two weeks before graduation. ⁸The hospital, the water tower, the drugstore with its soda fountain, the grocery store, the two hotels, the three banks, the theater, and everything else—just gone. ⁹The trees were shredded to nothing. Not a bird in sight. ¹⁰The only buildings left standing were the courthouse, the historic S.D. Robinett building, and Greensburg's giant grain elevator complex.
