Last updated: May 16, 2026

What this app stores

GritGrapher can store settings, saved records, and graph session data locally on your device when those features are enabled.

Where data goes

By default, your calculator inputs and saved records stay on-device and are not sent to a remote server by this app.

Import and export

Exported records are written as files by your browser or device. Imported records are read locally to restore your data.

Your controls

You can disable local record saving, clear records, and manage imported data at any time from the Settings panel.

Policy updates

This policy may be updated over time. The "Last updated" date reflects the latest revision.
