Flat Avatar Reflection

For this project, I used Inkscape to design my avatar according to this video's instructions. I did make a mistake in where I forgot to convert something to a path and struggled to curve some lines on the hair. Through this, I learned that starting over is sometimes the easiest option. I started over trying to curve the lines, and realized that earlier I had undone converting the hair to a path. The only scheduling concern is that I should have finished this reflection earlier; it is currently the night before it is due. I did well finishing the design quickly in class but need to finish my out-of-class work earlier. For people who follow after: be careful when watching the video, it is fast-paced and you can miss things easily.
