

Read 90-97 in Holt(3.3)
What was happening?	Why? (or How?)
Rich people could avoid fighting in the Revolution.
Washington changed his mind about African American soldiers.
Women helped with the war effort.
The Americans gave up the idea of annexing Canada.
General Howe made up for his defeat in Boston.
Despite being a failed spy, Nathan Hale is still remembered.
Victories at Trenton and Princeton saved the Continental Army.
General Burgoyne was probably not too happy with General Howe.
Spain, France, and Holland joined the fight.
The Marquis de Lafayette was made a general.
The Continental arm soon became more disciplined.
British support from Florida was cut off.
During the winter of 1777-78 the British were more comfortable than the patriots.
John Paul Jones was not easily discouraged.
George Rogers Clark did what he could with what he had.

