Welcome to the Check This Out Podcast!

POWERED BY CUE!!! Episode 75: "The Unstructured Show"

With your hosts Ryan O'Donnell and Brian Briggs

- In this episode we talk all about screen capturing and multiple programs to use
- Plus the power of unstructured play,
- And, some new updates coming to our favorite programs.

* This is Episode 75. And 75 is The number of balls in a standard game of Bingo. Teaser btw… I am working on some new classroom games including BINGO and may need to teachers to help test them out for me.

 Did you know: the 75 wedding anniversary gift is the diamond. A diamond lasts forever!

That's right, You are listening to Episode #75 for February 3, 2018

Clips on the ios is a great storytelling app

Ryan:
I need to apologize… I jumped the gun a little on Twitter
I shared two updates recently. One on Adobe Spark and the other about Google Expeditions.

Both made announcements and BOTH are saying SOON!

Spark is soon going to allow for 13 and under students to use their GSuite or Microsoft accounts to log in.
Expeditions is going to allow you to make your own VR expeditions

Expeditions announcement being able to make your own. But only in beta right now

Let's talk screen capturing. I use this EVERY DAY

- Macs: Press Shift-Command (⌘)-3 & 4
- PC's you now have your own built in Windows program called Snipping Tool
- Chromebooks: Hold down the "Ctrl" and "Shift" keys at once, then press the "switch window" button. An image is then saved as a PNG file in your "Downloads" folder.

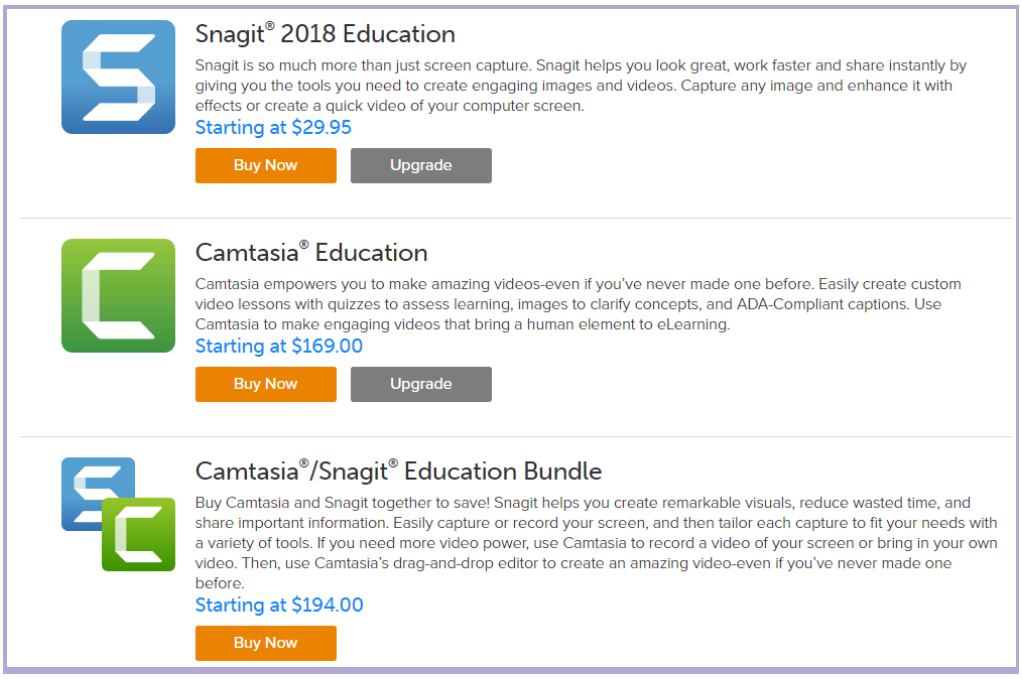

But what about recording video? I am doing this more and more on a regular basis

I have two recommendations
1) Screencastify:
https://chrome.google.com/webstore/detail/screencastify-screen-vide/mmeijimgabbpbgpdklnllpncmdofkcpn?hl=en

- Free version has 10 minute video length limit
- 50 videos / month
- Screencastify watermark

Now they offer an education pricing - you have to request a quote but to be honest… I have not seen many folks need more.

2) And for those that do, I point then to TechSmith
