

Fisherman's Wharf

- Fisherman's wharf was established in the early 1800s.
- The average fisherman made $2 to $5 a week back then.
- Before there were even sidewalks and restaurants fishermen were selling crab cocktails on the streets.
- From the days of the Gold Rush until the turn of the Century, the San Francisco fishing fleet was composed of lateen-rigged sailboats, called feluccas. They were built in the same style as the boats the local Italian fishermen knew in their native land. Green was the prevailing color of the tiny boats, and the name of a patron saint usually appeared on the hull. The fishermen themselves were as colorful as their craft. Their natural talent for song was to be heard in renditions of arias from Verdi, lusty if not always true to the ear. In the fog-shrouded waters outside the Golden Gate, singing was a means of communication. You could not see a nearby boat in the fog, but from the song of its captain, you knew it was there.

Cable Cars

Cable cars are a traditional daily transportation for San Francisco. Since 1964, the cable car has been designated by the National Park Service as a "national landmark". The inventor of the cable car was Andrew Hallidie, a Scottish engineer.

Attractions

Fisherman's wharf is a place of wonders with many attractions. Some of them include: Anchorage square, Aquarium of the bay, SS Jeremiah O'Brien, pier 39, the rocket boat, red and white fleet and Ripley's Believe It or Not! museum

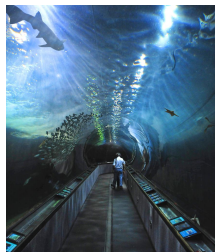

Details

- Anchorage square¹

Anchorage square among many other places is a tourist attraction with many places to shop, dine and just have fun. Some stores there include the cable car shop, IT'S SUGAR (and that's how the name is on the website) crazy shirts, Russian treasure and many more

- Aquarium of the bay
Aquarium of the bay is home to 20,000 plus animals, ranging from otters to rays. It has many interesting things to explore. It has a tunnel that goes underneath one of its tanks

- SS Jeremiah O'Brien
The SS Jeremiah O'Brien is one of the 2 to survive the war. Another thing that happened aboard the ship was all the engine room scenes in the movie Titanic were filmed aboard this ship(thank o'brien

o'brien is one of the 2

liberty ships ship was all ship(thank god it didn't sink). It is now someplace that you can go to tour , they take it out to sail on every now and then

- Pier 39

Pier 39 is home to many fun activities. Such as shopping,dining, playing and the public's favorite, sea lion watching. The sea lions came there shortly after the '89 earthquake and have been there ever ²since.

- the rocket
The rocket fisherman's wharf, with its minute tours around the bay bay.

boat ³
boat is one of the thrills of sudden twists and turns. It's thirty gives you the thrills and sights of the

The red and white owned. they depart from pier

- ripleys believe it or

The ripleys believe it or not! the museum there is a toy and candy factory . they for their buildings. and like many others, they make fun Titanic.⁶

- Red and white fleet⁴ fleet have been operating since 1892 and are family 43 1/2 and goes to the heart of fisherman's wharf not! museum ⁵ museum is home to the weird but interesting. Inside have lots of strange ideas of natural disasters like

²

³

⁴

⁵

⁶