

Josh Jones Forbes (he/him) is a community builder who believes in the intrinsic good of a city that welcomes and benefits all people. Josh works as Director of Communications at Northwest Neighborhoods CDC, the nonprofit provider of affordable housing and community development services for Cleveland's Cudell, Detroit Shoreway, and Edgewater communities. Josh practices a wide range of communication methods to engage diverse audiences, both in-person and online. His passion for inclusive neighborhoods has guided him in volunteering across Cleveland's east side, downtown, and west side. Josh is also passionate about LGBTQ+ activism, racial justice, public transit, environmental sustainability, arts, and personal wellness, and he is the founder of a community-based fitness studio, Out Fitness Collective. His many passions grew from his formative time as a student leader and musician at Kent State University.
