Apt Movers in Houston, TX

After a decade serving Houston, one thing we've learned is that moving isn't just about transporting boxes. It's about knowing the quirks of every neighborhood and every building's personality — especially in the Heights. Most people don't realize how much local knowledge affects the final bill until they're already on the clock with a crew that's never navigated a narrow Heights driveway before.

At Pack It Movers Heights, we've handled thousands of moves right here from our base at 721 East 11th Street. Most companies aren't actually located in the neighborhoods they serve — they're dispatched from a warehouse across town and showing up to your block for the first time on moving day. We live and work in these streets. That difference shows up in every job we run.

Here's something you don't hear often: choosing a mover that actually knows Houston Heights can cost you less than going with a larger company from across town. We've watched customers burn an extra $200–$400 in overtime charges because their crew spent 45 minutes figuring out parking on a street we navigate three times a week.

You can find our full breakdown of what we offer on our apartment moving page. Need a free estimate? Call us directly at (346) 853-7110 or swing by 721 East 11th Street for face-to-face advice.

At Pack It Movers Heights, we're not transplants to this neighborhood — we're part of it. Learn more about our team or check our reviews on Google Maps.

What Most People Get Wrong About Apt Movers

Most folks assume all apartment movers are interchangeable — book the cheapest crew, load the truck, done. That assumption costs people real money.

The most expensive mistake we see: a customer in Sunset Heights hired a discount crew at $85/hour instead of our standard $110–$130/hour rate. Sounded like a win. But that crew showed up without furniture dollies rated for the 35-degree staircase pitch common in 1920s Heights walkups, spent 40 minutes improvising a solution, and clocked 2.5 hours of overtime. Final bill? $180 more than our quote would have been — plus a gouged baseboard they didn't disclose until the customer noticed it a week later.

The other big one: insurance. A basic mover typically carries Released Value Protection at $0.60 per pound. So if your 80-pound mahogany dresser gets destroyed on a third-floor Shady Acres walkup, you're legally entitled to $48. Full Replacement Value coverage — what we carry — pays out actual repair or replacement cost. For most two-bedroom moves, upgrading to full replacement value runs an additional $75–$150. That's not optional in our book.

Here's a straight comparison of what separates a real local crew from a low-bid operation:

Service Aspect	Discount Mover	Pack It Movers Heights	Why It Matters
--- --- --- ---
Insurance Coverage	Released Value ($0.60/lb)	Full Replacement Value	Covers your actual furniture value, not pennies per pound
Hourly Rate	$75–$95/hr	$110–$130/hr	Lower rate often means slower crew or hidden overtime
Equipment	Basic hand trucks	Forearm Forklift straps, Libretto furniture dollies, 4-wheel platform carts	Right tools cut job time by 30–45 minutes on average
Local Knowledge	Dispatched from outside area	Based on East 11th St, Heights	No wasted time on parking, building quirks, or route planning
Crew Training	Variable, often seasonal hires	Minimum 6 months on-crew before leading a job	Consistent handling of antiques, fragile items, tight stairwells
Recommendation	Fine for a studio with IKEA furniture	Right call for anything you'd actually miss	Don't gamble on irreplaceable pieces

How Much Do Apt Movers Cost in Houston?

In our experience, Houston apartment moves run between $350 and $1,200 for local jobs — and that range isn't random. The spread comes down to a handful of very specific variables: square footage, stair count, parking access, elevator availability, and whether packing services are included.

Here's what we see on actual jobs across Woodland Heights, Norhill, and the greater Heights area:

Move Type	Cost Range	Typical Duration	Key Variables

Studio (under 500 sq ft)	$350–$500	1.5–2.5 hours	Minimal furniture, ground floor = lower end
One-Bedroom Apartment	$500–$700	2–3.5 hours	Stairs add 20–40 min per floor
Two-Bedroom Apartment	$700–$1,000	3.5–5 hours	Crew of 3 recommended for 3rd floor or higher
Two-Bedroom + Packing	$900–$1,200	5–7 hours	Add $150–$300 for professional packing
Long-Distance (Houston to Katy, Sugar Land)	$800–$1,500	Half to full day	Flat rate preferred over hourly for runs over 30 miles

A few Houston-specific cost factors that rarely show up in generic moving guides:

Parking situations in the Heights add real time. Streets like Studewood, Nicholson, and Heights Boulevard have restricted parking during certain hours. A crew that doesn't know this wastes 20–30 minutes and you're paying for every minute of it.

Houston's heat is a legitimate scheduling cost. June through September, we build buffer time into outdoor loading for heat safety. A move that takes 3 hours in March can run 3.5–4 hours in August. Plan for that when budgeting.

Older buildings off White Oak Drive and 20th Street often have no freight elevator. Every additional floor in a walkup adds roughly $50–$80 to the final cost, depending on what's being moved.

Pro Tip from Pack It Movers Heights:

Book at least two weeks out during spring and early fall — our peak season runs March through October. Same-day slots exist, but you'll have more flexibility (and better rates) with advance notice. Call (346) 853-7110 to lock in your date.

What Should You Look for When Choosing Apt Movers?

After 10 years watching moving companies come and go in Houston Heights — and we've seen plenty disappear after one bad summer — here's what actually separates a solid crew from one you'll regret hiring.

Equipment tells you everything upfront. A professional apartment moving crew shows up with Forearm Forklift lifting straps, Libretto or Magliner furniture dollies, and rubber-wheeled platform carts rated for hardwood floors. Generic hand trucks on a third-floor Heights walkup are how banisters and door frames get destroyed. At Pack It Movers Heights, we carry equipment sized specifically for the tight turns and low ceilings common in pre-1950s Houston construction — because that's the majority of what we move in this neighborhood.

Ask directly about their experience with specific building types. Don't accept vague answers.

Ask: "Have you moved out of a 1930s duplex with exterior stairs?" or "Have you worked in [specific complex] on Studemont?" A crew that's been there gives you a specific answer. A crew that hasn't will hedge.

Insurance documentation should take 90 seconds to produce. If a company fumbles the question or says "we're covered, don't worry about it" — that's your answer. Ask for their USDOT number and verify it at safer.fmcsa.dot.gov before signing anything.

Credentials checklist before you book:

- Texas DMV mover registration (required for all Texas movers)
- USDOT number (verifiable in under 2 minutes online)
- Full Replacement Value insurance option available in writing
- Crew with a minimum of 6 months on-crew — not day laborers
- Specific experience with Houston apartment buildings, not just general residential

In tight communities like Lazybrook and Independence Heights, the buildings have personalities. The 1940s fourplexes near Cavalcade have stairwells that are 28 inches wide at the landing — standard 30-inch refrigerator dollies don't make that turn. We know because we've moved out of those buildings a dozen times.

How Can I Find Apt Movers Near Me in Houston?

We're at 721 East 11th Street, right in the center of Houston Heights — about 10 minutes from downtown via I-45 North, and 5 minutes from the White Oak Bayou trail system if you know the neighborhood. Our service area covers the Heights and surrounding communities including Woodland Heights, Norhill, Sunset Heights, Shady Acres, Lazybrook, Oak Forest, and Independence Heights, plus longer-haul jobs out to Cypress, Katy, Spring, Sugar Land, and Pasadena.

Being this centrally located isn't just a logistics convenience — it means we're on-site faster. For a last-minute call on a Tuesday morning, we can have a crew at most Heights addresses within 30–45 minutes. A company dispatching from Katy won't beat that.

According to Pack It Movers Heights, the biggest search mistake people make is filtering only by price and star rating without checking whether the mover has actually worked in their specific neighborhood. A 4.9-star mover based in Pearland may have never dealt with the freight elevator quirks at a Midtown high-rise or the loading-dock scheduling at apartment complexes along Shepherd Drive. Proximity to your neighborhood isn't just convenience — it's operational competence.

What's Unique About Moving in Houston?

Ten years in this city has taught us that Houston moves have a specific set of variables that don't exist anywhere else in Texas — and most moving guides written for a national audience completely miss them.

The heat is a real operational factor, not just a comfort issue. Houston averages 106 heat index days per year — more than Phoenix once humidity is factored in. From June through September, we schedule outdoor loading work before 11am and after 4pm when possible. A move that takes 3 hours in March can take 4+ hours in July with the same crew and same load, purely due to mandatory rest intervals. Budget for that extra hour.

Houston's zoning rules create wildly inconsistent building stock. Because Houston has no traditional zoning, a single city block in Montrose might hold a 1920s craftsman bungalow, a 2019 townhome construction, and a converted commercial building — each with completely different move-in/move-out requirements, elevator schedules, and HOA rules. We've handled all three building types in the same week, sometimes the same day. A crew unfamiliar with Houston's housing patchwork treats every building the same. We don't.

Harris County building codes affect move logistics more than most people realize. High-rise buildings downtown and in Midtown are subject to specific freight elevator scheduling windows — often 8am–5pm weekdays only — and building management requires Certificate of Insurance (COI) documentation from your movers before allowing access. At Pack It Movers Heights, we carry COI documentation and can provide building management-compliant paperwork within 24 hours of booking.

Neighborhood event calendars matter. The Houston Heights Association hosts street events on 19th Street and Heights Boulevard throughout the year. Art Car Parade weekend in April, and the various White Linen Night events in the summer close key routes we use regularly. We track these dates and flag them during booking — because a crew showing up on the wrong Saturday in the Heights will sit in traffic for 45 minutes before they ever touch your furniture.

FAQ

What areas in the Heights do you serve?

We cover Woodland Heights, Norhill, Sunset Heights, Shady Acres, Oak Forest, Lazybrook, and Independence Heights — all from our base at 721 East 11th Street. Extended service runs out to Cypress, Katy, Spring, Sugar Land, and Pasadena for flat-rate long-distance jobs.

How much do movers cost in Houston Heights?

Budget $350–$700 for a one-bedroom local move and $700–$1,200 for two bedrooms with packing. Jobs on third-floor walkups — common in the 1920s–1940s construction throughout Sunset Heights and Norhill — run toward the upper end of those ranges. Call (346) 853-7110 for a specific quote based on your address and floor.

Do you move apartments in Houston Heights?

Yes — apartment moves are our primary work. From studios near North Main to three-story walkups off Studewood, we've navigated the full range of Houston Heights housing stock. Tight staircases, exterior stairwells, low overhangs — we've encountered all of it and carry the right equipment for each situation.

Are you licensed and insured?

Fully licensed under Texas DMV mover regulations with an active USDOT number. We carry both Released Value and Full Replacement Value coverage options. Full Replacement Value runs an additional $75–$150 depending on declared item value and is worth it for anything irreplaceable. Ask for documentation before you sign — we produce it in under two minutes.

Can you do same-day or last-minute moves in the Heights?

In our experience, proximity is what makes same-day moves possible. Being based on East 11th Street means we can often mobilize within 30–45 minutes for Heights-area jobs. Call (346) 853-7110 to check same-day availability — don't just assume it's impossible.

Do you provide packing services?

Full and partial packing options are available. We supply Uline double-wall boxes, Sealed Air bubble wrap, and packing paper — no "whatever was in the warehouse" materials. Packing services add $150–$300 to most jobs and typically reduce total move time by 45–90 minutes. For Lazybrook and Timbergrove renters hitting end-of-lease crunch time, this option books fast — plan ahead.

What makes Pack It Movers Heights different from other Houston movers?

At Pack It Movers Heights, we are not a regional call center dispatching crews who GPS their way to your address for the first time. Our crew knows which blocks on Nicholson have restricted parking Tuesday mornings, which buildings off Heights Boulevard require COI paperwork, and which stairwells in Sunset Heights need a 4-wheel cart instead of a standard dolly. That's 10 years of route and building knowledge — and it shows up on every job in the form of fewer surprises and faster completion times.

Book Your Move Today
