

Hi Jay, (Jay is a content creator who offers advice on relationships )

I'm a copywriter interested in helping you take your youtube and Instagram accounts to new heights. But, before that let me introduce myself.

How old am I? I'm not 18 yet.

Do I have any experience? I'm fairly inexperienced, though I hope we can grow together in this journey we might take.

Has anyone been mentoring me? I'm under the supervision of one of the best copywriters in the world, who guides me through any adversity I might face.

I want to help you grow your social media accounts. I have carried out a study of the relationship market and I am certain that with the right advice and with the right measures your accounts will see growth. A growth you can use to increase your earnings.

My role in this journey toward your growth will be to help you manage your online marketing system(email newsletters, posts, or anything else) in other terms, to grab the attention of potential customers and lead them to a product they can purchase while also being a consultant, recommending things that could potentially help your business grow.

Why should you listen to some teen who reached out to you from nowhere? Because you will be my number one client, with whom I hope to have a long and beneficial journey.

Now there is only one more question to ask:

Will you take action?
