

Repository of Resources

This Repository of Resources has been created to ease the time and efforts of educators as they curate resources to use with learners at home. We know the power of leveraging our network at this time. We encourage you to use the contents of this open-access, shared space and add to it as we collectively gather materials that support anytime, anywhere learning. In addition, we have provided a Table of Contents below and recorded a screencast to give you an introduction to the content and to help you better understand how the repository is organized.

While we know that nothing will replace daily, face-to-face time with our learners, our hope is that all educators and families across the nation are able to collaborate in a way that connects us and allows all learners to have access to quality resources.

Our team has begun to add resources and will continue to do so in the coming weeks, but we encourage you, your educators and your families to continue to contribute to this collective work. As with any shared, collaborative folder, the amount and quality of resources depend on each user to consume and create within the folders and documents.

If you have any additional questions, please contact Brenda Vogds at bvogds@cesal.k12.wi.us.

The linked folders below are accessible and editable by all. Use them to curate documents and resources you are willing to share with others.	We are aware that not all of the resources we have to share can be saved in a Drive folder. To organize other links that you may want to share, we have created documents that coincide with each area.
