

5.8- Creativity

Take some time to read and reflect on the following

You were created to create. You were created to use creativity. Human experience is one of learning and growing. Human society is one of innovation and expression. Our continued triumphs and handiworks are, if we allow them to be, another triumph of the handiwork of God. Our creativity is a profound act of worship.

When we use our creative powers, we are always just one acknowledgment away from entering into worship.

We let many things get in the way of using our creativity. Our own ego or embarrassment at not being as talented as others, a misnomer of frivolity around spending time to simply create things, or just a lack of discipline or intentionality. Perhaps attaching creativity to our sense of worship can help us overcome these barriers.

We should seek to remove all obstacles that prevent us from worshipping God.

Worshipping through exercising our creativity is a joy and wonder of being ourselves created in the image of the creator God. This should be a welcome component of our worshipful lives.

Take some time to put the following into practice

Create something today for the sole purpose of worshipping through creating. Choose something deliberate that you were not already planning on doing today, or that you need to complete a task or project. The goal here is not function nor efficiency, but to exercise your divine image of creation.
