

Group 3
McFaddin E&D
Spring 2020

1) Choose a topic for exploration:

Our topic for exploration is the introduction of the WNBA.

2) List possible keywords describing your topic to use in locating resources:

Women's basketball
WNBA
WNBA History
Women in sports

3) Each group member: cite one relevant book you discovered in the catalog on your topic (if it's a physical book in Watzek, go get it!):

Nelson, Mariah Burton., and Smith, Lissa. Nike Is a Goddess : The History of Women in Sports. 1st ed. New York: Atlantic Monthly Press, 1998.

Terzieff, Juliette. Women of the Court : Inside the WNBA. 1st ed. New York: Alyson, 2008.

Grasso, John. Historical Dictionary of Basketball. Historical Dictionaries of Sports ; No. 2. Lanham, MD: Scarecrow Press, 2010.

4) Each group member: cite a relevant news source on your topic (try resources listed in the News Sources tab of your course guide):

"WNBA Debut Scores Hit with Fans." Jet. 92, no. 7 (1997): 51.

Grosbard, Adam. 2018. "The Root of WNBA Players' Argument about the Gender Wage Gap in Basketball." Dallas Morning News, The (TX), June 26.

Parrish Alford. "Price-Herrington: WNBA on the Rise." Northeast Mississippi Daily Journal (Tupelo, MS), 2015.

5) Each group member: cite one related articles from an Article Database:

Berri, David J., and Anthony C. Krautmann. "Understanding the WNBA on and off the court." In Handbook on the economics of women in sports. Edward Elgar Publishing, 2013.

Staffo, Donald F. 1998. "The History of Women's Professional Basketball in the United States with an Emphasis on the Old WBL and the New ABL and WNBA." Physical Educator 55 (4): 187.

Rushin, Steve. 2018. "Yes, She Can." Sports Illustrated 129 (3): 60–65.

<http://search.ebscohost.com.library.lcproxy.org/login.aspx?direct=true&db=aph&AN=130905044&site=ehost-live&scope=site>.