Effective Classroom Integration	App(s) are used and seamlessly embedded into teaching and learning, aligned with lesson goals, and enhance learning outcomes.	App(s) are well integrated and support learning, though some connections to the curriculum could be strengthened.	App(s) are used in teaching, but integration appears superficial or lacks clear alignment to lesson outcomes.	App(s) are mentioned but with minimal or unclear connection to actual classroom use.
Learner-Centered Approach	Learners are clearly active participants; app(s) support personalised or self-directed learning.	App(s) use involves learners meaningfully, encouraging engagement and participation.	App(s) use includes learners, but mostly in passive or teacher-directed ways.	Learners' role in app use is minimal or unclear.
Facilitation of the 4 C's (Creativity, Communication, Collaboration, Critical Thinking)	App(s) effectively support all 4 C's with clear classroom examples.	App(s) support at least 3 of the 4 C's in practical classroom contexts.	App(s) demonstrate potential for 1–2 C's, but limited application is shown.	Little to no evidence of 4 C's being facilitated through the use of the app(s).
Innovation / New Tools	Presenter introduces a novel or rarely-used app(s) with unique value.	Presenter shares a new or emerging app(s) for many attendees.	App(s) are familiar but used in an interesting way.	App(s) are widely known and used with little innovation shown.
Evidence of Use (Media-Photos, Videos, Learner Work)	Multiple forms of rich, authentic evidence provided; clearly supporting effectiveness.	Good variety of evidence presented and mostly relevant.	Limited evidence is shown, or lacks context.	No or unclear evidence presented.
