

The Formatter script in this document template automatically numbers paragraphs to use in close reading and annotation strategies with students

It works by looking for line breaks, so it will also grab the article title (if there is one) at the top as well. Cut any text you don't want formatted and paste it back in after running the script.

Make a copy of this document and use the Format Article menu item above to run the script on this text and see what it does. Simply replace this text with your article and run again when you need one formatted for students.
